AMERICANS SMASH THROUGH TO RHINE

SOVIETS NEAR BALTIC COAST IN POMERANIA

BERLIN TO DANZIG HIGHWAY CUT BY RUSSIANS

BY W. W. HERCHER

London, March 2. (AP)—German broadcasts said tonight that Russian tanks and motorized spearheads had penetrated to within four miles of the Baltic coast in middle Pomerania, cutting the Berlin-Stettin-Danzig military superhighway and sealing off scores of thousands of Nazi troops in northeastern Pomerania and the Danzig-Gdynia areas.

Moscow's high command placed a security blackout on this tremendous surge toward the Baltic which Berlin said reached Zanow, four miles from the coast and five miles northeast of the junction town of Koeslin. The Soviet bulletin announced gains only on the western side of the bulge northwest and west of captured Neustettin, 38 miles southeast of Koeslin.

Spearheads Unchecked

These included Goldbeck, on the Dublitz-Koeslin highway 20 miles southeast of Koeslin; Gissolk, nine miles west of Neustettin; and Juchow, nine miles southwest of Neustettin. They also took Klingbeck, eight miles northwest of Neustettin, and were only four miles from another super highway running from nearby Baerwalde to Stettin in the southwest.

Other Soviet troops captured six localities in East Prussia and cleared the southern part of besieged Grudziadz, Vistula River stronghold south of Danzig, Moscow said.

Moscow radio broadcasts credited the Russian Pomeranian forces with "important operational successes" in their drive to split Pomerania in two, and Berlin said that the Baltic-bound spearheads were employing three tank and three motorized divisions.

Berlin also reported violent Russian attacks in East Prussia southwest of besieged Koenigsberg, on the approaches to Stettin, Pomeranian capital and Berlin's port 82 miles southwest of menaced Koeslin, and in the Sudeten mountain foothills in upper Silesia near Schweidnitz, 27 miles southwest of embattled Breslau and 14 miles from the Czechoslovakian frontier.

Only a secondary road and the Berlin-Stettin-Danzig trunk railway remain to be cut before Rokossovsky's troops actually trap a large number of German troops in a 5,450 - square - mile sector of northeastern Pomerania, the Polish "corridor," and Danzig territory.

Siberian and Cossack horsemen under Lt. Gen. N. S. Oslikovsky were operating ahead of Rokossovsky's armored units, and following in the wake of the tanks were mobile artillery groups under Col. Gen. A. K. Sokolsky, striving to effect a third great encirclement of Nazi forces.

Strategy Repeated

The Pomeranian break-through was a repetition of the strategy which trapped the units of 30 enemy divisions in Latvia last October and the remnants of 20 Nazi divisions in East Prussia in January.

The Third White Russian army around Koenigsberg now has launched a major assault on the narrow enemy pocket along the Frisches Haff, Baltic lagoon, southwest of the East Prussian capital, Berlin said. Once it has

Judge Gets Laugh When He Informs Wallace: You're In

BY J. W. DAVIS

Washington, March 2 (AP) — Henry A. Wallace marked out for himself today a big place in America's economic future, even though Congress has deprived him of financial power.

The former vice president was sworn into the cabinet in a gay ceremony. Then he promptly laid down these goals for his work in what Congress meant to be a close-cropped secretaryship of commerce:

"The department of commerce will continue to aid the war effort and it will likewise do its part to facilitate maximum cooperation between the nation's employes, investors, business, agriculture and government to the end that all America, our assets and our people may be busily and profitably employed."

How great a part the department can play remained in doubt, now that the $40,000,000,000 realm of finance which ousted Jesse H. Jones ruled as secretary has been taken away.

Long, Hard Pull

"It will do what it can to help develop the fullest use of all manpower, womanpower, money, credit, ingenuity and science to produce even more for the peace than we have learned to produce for war so that the peacetime standard of living may be continually rising."

Wallace took his oath of office from Justice Hugo L. Black of the supreme court. Black's smiling remark, "You're in," brought general laughter.

But it had been a long hard pull for Wallace to get that "you're in." It was not until yesterday that he was confirmed as secretary. Action was held up until the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and other big lending agencies had been taken away from the department.

Wallace's first act as secretary followed the pattern in behalf of "the little fellow" which his backers say always has been his guide.

He appointed a committee of business men and bankers to report as soon as possible on "suggestions for enabling small business to do its full share" in furnishing postwar employment.

DODGE FACTORY STRIKE SPREADS

Workers Ignore Appeal To Resume Needed War Production

Detroit, March 2 (AP)—More than 33,000 war workers, either on strike or laid off for lack of parts, were idle tonight in twelve Chrysler Corporation and Briggs Manufacturing Co. plants in the Detroit area.

Production in these factories of parts for tanks, for B-29 Superfortresses, for anti-aircraft guns, and heavy and light trucks and ambulances was at a virtual standstill.

The National War Labor Board late today summoned management representatives and union leaders of the Chrysler strikers to a hearing at 11 a. m. tomorrow in Washington in an attempt to end the walkout.

The strikers, members of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) had ignored an appeal from Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson to resume production of war material he said was "urgently needed" on the fighting fronts.

Defying warnings of disciplinary action by international officials of their union, the workers spread their work stoppage today to five Briggs factories and to the Chrysler DeSoto Warren Avenue plant.

An afternoon survey by company officials showed a total of 27,050 on strike and another 6,550 forced into idleness for lack of parts.

SINATRA 4-F AGAIN

New York, Mar. 2 (AP)—The New York Daily News says it has learned that Singer Frank Sinatra again has been classified 4-F. After examinations at Governors Island last month, final determination of his status was referred to Washington authorities.

Sinatra, who went to Hollywood Feb. 11, originally was classified 4-F in December, 1943, because of a punctured ear drum.

Roosevelt Answers News Queries With Chuckles

BY HOWARD FLIEGER

Washington, March 2. (AP)—President Roosevelt was in a chuckling, chatty mood today as Washington reporters filed into his study for his first news conference since January 19.

The conference opened 47 minutes late. The president volunteered no important information but a drumfire of newsmen's questions uncorked some presidential news about Jesse Jones (he's through as loan administrator as well as commerce secretary), about reparations, treaties—and little else.

Somebody wanted to know whether there will be many senate treaties as a result of the big-three's Yalta conference.

Treaties and legislation will be going to congress like clockwork, said the president. He didn't grow specific but he said there'll be a need for things like money — an obvious reference to the Bretton Woods agreements—and for a host of things he wrapped up as small details.

There might be a treaty with Germany some day but talk about it now is pretty iffy; he's no crystal gazer, said the president. First he wants to win the war. But it might not be a bad idea, he observed, to send some ex-German soldiers into the Crimea to clean up the war mess he saw there.

With uninformative answers—or chuckles—Mr. Roosevelt deflated questions about rumors that Commerce Secretary Henry A. Wallace will take over the foreign economic administration, about former Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn's mission to Russia, about the reason for calling a United Nations conference in San Francisco. It seemed like a pretty good place to the president.

Then a newsman asked about "the present status of Jesse Jones," fired as secretary of commerce when Mr. Roosevelt picked Wallace for the job.

The president smiled and said he's been assuming right along that Jones is ex-secretary of commerce.

"Does he still hold his loan job (RFC head)?" the reporter pressed.

He had that as secretary of commerce, Mr. Roosevelt replied—then added an emphatic no when asked whether the Texan would stay with the lending agencies until his successor is named.

AIRFORCE CHIEF LOST IN PACIFIC

Plane Carrying General Reported Missing After Crash

(By The Associated Press)

Washington, March 2—Lt. General Millard F. Harmon, commander of army air forces in the Pacific ocean area, was reported last (Friday) night to be missing.

Reports said a plane in which the general was a passenger was overdue. These accounts could not be confirmed immediately at the war department.

The Blue Network, in a broadcast from Washington, had said that General Harmon had been lost in a plane crash in the Pacific.

It was presumed that an intensive search was underway for the missing plane, apparently more than 24 hours overdue by Friday night.

General Harmon, a native of San Francisco, commanded army forces in the South Pacific area during the Solomons campaign. In April, 1943, he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for the action.

He was promoted to a major general in February of that year. June 30, 1943, he narrowly escaped death on a torpedoed ship.

A fighter pilot in France in 1917, he assumed command of all army airforce units in the Pacific Ocean areas August 31, 1944, exclusive of those in Alaska.

He was named to the command of the Strategic Air Force, Pacific Ocean areas, December 8, 1944

Chaling Recaptured By Chinese Troops In Hunan Province

BY SPENCER MOOSA

Chungking, Mar. 2 (AP)—Chinese forces have recaptured Chaling, important Japanese stronghold in Hunan province, 60 miles east of Hengyang, and are pursuing enemy troops fleeing toward Yuhsien, 25 miles northward, the Chinese high command announced tonight.

Chinese troops also counterattacked entrenched Japanese seven miles southwest of Paoching, a Japanese strongpoint 63 miles west of Hengyang.

Attacking Chinese reached the suburbs of Ichang, west of the Canton-Hankow railroad and about 105 miles south of Hengyang.

Rains Raise Ohio Above Flood Crest

Cincinnati, March 2 (AP) — Prediction that the Ohio River would rise rapidly to a possible crest of 63 feet by Sunday came late today from the U. S. weather bureau as a result of rains of an inch or more in many sections of the Ohio Valley.

The newly-forecast crest would put the river 11 feet above flood stage in this area.

LUBANG FALLS TO AMERICANS IN PHILIPPINES

SHORT SEA ROUTE TO MANILA BAY IS CLEARED

BY C. YATES McDANIEL

Manila, Saturday, March 3 (AP)—Men of MacArthur, making their 18th island invasion in the Philippines—the fifth in a little over a week—have landed on Lubang island, 35 miles southwest of Manila Bay's entrance and thus completed clearance of the shortest sea route through the Philippines from the United States.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique today announced seizure of the 18-by-eight mile island at the west end of Verde passage just one day after he disclosed his forces further southwest had invaded Palawan island where a third airfield now is in American hands.

Resistance Weak

Elements of Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving's 24th Division, who played a major role on Leyte island and also helped recapture Corregidor fortress landed on Lubang "against negligible resistance."

MacArthur said the seizure of Lubang, the 18th Philippine island invaded by the Americans, "completes the capture of all key positions through San Bernardino Straits and the Verde island passage designed to secure the main navigational channel through the islands for shipping from the United States."

In recent invasions the Yanks have invaded Verde island, just east of Lubang, and Capul and Biri islands at the eastern end of the main navigation route through the central Philippines.

Airfields Bombed

East of Manila, in the important Marikina Watershed area, First Cavalry and Sixth Division troops maintained their pressure against a strong Japanese defense force, while heavy bombers supported the ground drive with a 120-ton bombing of enemy positions.

MacArthur said Yank forces to the north were gradually "enveloping and unhinging" successive Japanese positions covering the Balete Pass area which leads to the Cagayan valley of northern Luzon.

A strong force of Liberators dropped 200 tons of bombs on airdromes on Mindanao island, in the southern Philippines, cratering runways and starting numerous fires in the Davao and Zamboanga areas.

Heavy bombers swept the China Sea as far north as Okinawa, north of Formosa, sinking five small freighters and leaving another five afire. Three other small freighters were sunk in the Hong Kong area of the South

PROSECUTOR ILL IN GRAFT TRIAL

Kim Sigler Is Stricken With Food Poisoning At Lansing

Lansing, March 2. (AP)—Special Prosecutor Kim Sigler was recovering tonight from an acute attack of food poisoning which resulted in the adjournment of the trial of seven defendants in the naturopathy graft conspiracy case.

Dr. C. B. Gardner said tonight that while Sigler is "doing very well" it would be "several days before he can be on the job."

Dr. Gardner, Sigler's physician, said the prosecutor "apparently" was stricken with ptomaine poisoning, and that he was improving and resting more easily this afternoon. Sigler's associates in the prosecution of the trial said they were convinced he had eaten accidentally contaminated food at a private dinner he attended last night.

Dr. Gardner said, after examining Sigler for the second time today, that he saw no evidence the prosecutor had been poisoned deliberately. In an earlier statement he had recognized that possibility, announcing that Sigler suffered from a gastro-intestinal upset "unless someone slipped him something else." He said that "with a man of his prominence there is always that possibility to be considered."

The defendants in the naturopathy trial are charged with exchanging bribes during the 1939 session of the legislature, when the American Naturopathic association of Michigan sought unsuccessfully to have enacted a law regulating the practice of naturopathy in Michigan.

Marine Veterans Set For Kill On Iwo Jima

BY ELMONT WHITE

U. S. Pacific Fleet Hearquarters, Guam, Saturday, Mar. 3 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine's Third Marine Division lunged into the rugged north end of Iwo Friday to within 600 yards of cutting the Japanese garrison in two and sealing off the point of greatest enemy resistance.

Driving a 700-yard wedge and seizing a 362-foot hill, the Leathernecks in the center of the Marine line approached the cliff edge on the island's northeast coast.

The incomplete count of enemy dead rose more than 2,300 in four days to 7,127 by noon Friday.

Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's Fifth Marine Division on the west coast, which previously had captured another Hill 362—the hills on the island are named for their height in feet—beat off Japanese counterattacks.

Closing Battle Near

The Japanese garrison, originally estimated at 20,000, fought back fiercely from the less than one third northern part still in their hands.

The advances of the Third Division beyond captured Motoyama town put those Devildogs a half mile or less from the northeast tip, threatening to cut the Japanese in half. Front dispatches said the third has scored a breakthrough which is bringing the campaign, 12 days old today, into its closing stages.

The big bomber air base captured Feb. 20 on the second day of the invasion on the south part of the island is being restored swiftly for use by bombers and fighters, within 750 miles of Tokyo, today's communique noted.

Warships Back Troops

Fifth Fleet warships, carrier-based planes and marine artillery supplied the fire curtain for the marines in Friday's gains.

Thursday both carrier-based and land-based planes made neutralization attacks on the Bonin islands north of Iwo, the bases in the best position to aid the Nipponese garrison on Iwo.

After days of vicious fighting, the Leathernecks were in position for the final kill, said a dispatch from Morrie Landsberg, AP war correspondent aboard the expeditionary flagship.

Friday morning's communique reported this significant gain, made on Thursday, and also said the western end of the line moved forward.

An equally optimistic report on the situation on the western flank came from AP War Correspondent Hamilton Faron, with the Fifth Marine Division. He said the Devildogs on that end of the line had broken through what was believed to be the last major line of enemy resistance.

Airmen Destroy 109 Nazi Planes In Combat Over Reich

BY CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

London, March 2 (AP)—American airmen fought one of the biggest sky battles in weeks today, destroying at least 109 enemy planes, as more than 6,000 Allied aircraft hammered German targets in a series of attacks which included two by RAF heavy bombers against desieged Cologne.

The U. S. Eighth Air Force hurled 1,250 four-engined bombers and nearly 800 escorting fighters deep into the Reich during the day and incited the luftwaffe into sending aloft its carefully hoarded interceptors. American fighters shot down 67 and wrecked an additional 36 on the ground. Gunners aboard the big bombers shot down six.

A communique from the Eighth Air Force said a tally of its own losses still was incomplete tonight.

The spectacular aerial battle involving the Americans was but one phase of the gigantic Allied air assault which carried through its 18th consecutive day. The operation marked the 12th straight day of attacks by the Eighth Air Force and the 11th during that period when the force has numbered more than 1,000 bombers.

Battered Cologne, next to Berlin the most bombed city in the world, was struck by 3,600 tons of bombs from nearly 1,000 British heavies even while artillery of the U. S. Ninth army continued its ceaseless shelling from little more than four miles away.

The bombers and artillerymen avoided the famous cathedral in the Rhine's first city, but found plenty of targets in the glaring sunlight which was softened only by pillars of smoke rising 8,000 feet into the air.

Senate Tightens Farm Draft Bans

Washington, March 2 (AP)—The Senate voted today to tighten restrictions against drafting farm workers into the armed forces.

It was the first concrete step, after a week of debate, toward perfecting a manpower control bill.

The amendment, offered by Senator Tydings (D-Md), was approved by a voice vote. It would require local draft boards to base agricultural deferments solely on whether the registrant is regularly engaged in essential farm work and whether a satisfactory replacement can be obtained.

The local board could not compare his essentiality as a farmer with his essentiality in any other vocation, including military service.

Secretary Of UAW Passes Army Tests

Detroit, March 2 (AP) — George F. Addes, 34-year-old secretary-treasurer of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), passed a pre-induction physical examination today, three weeks after he was classified 1-A.

Addes, acting president of the UAW-CIO in the absence abroad of R. J. Thomas, said he would not ask for a deferment, despite the fact he was in the midst of negotiations for the settlement of two major strikes at Chrysler Corporation and Briggs Manufacturing Co. plants.

NO NEWS IN ITALY

Rome, Mar. 2 (AP)—A lone German plane ventured over American lines in the Apennines today and bombed and strafed along the important Florence-Bologne highway to keep the legend of the German air force alive—and that virtually summed up the news of the Italian front.

MAYORS DEMAND RETURN OF TAX

Sixth Of Sales Levy Sought For Local Government Use

Lansing, March 2. (AP)—An organization of city mayors and village presidents agreed today to fight in the legislature for a bill to return to local governmental units a sixth of the sales tax.

It sent a delegation, then, to confer with Governor Kelly, but just what occurred in the closed meeting seemed confused in the minds of all concered. The mayors said they had not told Kelly of their intention or followed through with a demand that he give them a "yes" or "no" answer whether he would help them or fight them.

Kelly said he was "glad" to see the bill offered as one of a number of possible solutions of local governmental units' financial difficulties; that he considered it preferable to his tax study commission's city sales tax law proposal, but that he had not endorsed the mayors' proposal, either.

In conference in the office of Mayor Ralph W. Creego of Lansing, chairman of their group, the city and village officials announced they would ask Senator James T. Milliken, Traverse City Republican chairman of the senate taxation committee, and Rep. Walter G. Herrick, Hubbardston Republican chairman of the house general taxation committee, to sponsor their bill. The legislators had left for the week-end before the meeting.

Under the mayors' plan cities and villages would receive a sixth of the state sales tax collected within their corporate boundaries. Counties would receive a sixth collected in non-urban areas inside their borders.

NAZIS DRIVEN OUT OF VITAL RUHR VALLEY

NINTH ARMY SHELLS DUESSELDORF ARSENAL

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR

Paris, March 2 (AP)—The U. S. Ninth army, running wild through city after city in America's greatest offensive, smashed to the Rhine today and began shelling the arsenals of Duesseldorf after routing the German 15th army and seizing almost all the vital Ruhr basin west of the river.

All German defenses before the Ninth and west of the Rhine were collapsing, and far to the south the U. S. Third army was threatening another breakthrough to Germany's historic Moat by capturing the ancient fortress of Trier, guardian city on the Moselle river route to Coblenz.

Strongholds Fall

Duesseldorf's cross-Rhine suburb of Neuss and the steel city of Krefeld near the Rhine, 10 miles to the northwest, fell with astonishing speed along with dozens of other small cities and town making munitions and materials for the German war machine as the Ninth scored 24-hour advances up to 15 miles.

One column, capturing the Maas river strongholds of Venlo and Roermond—before which many a British Second army soldier died last fall and winter—dashed straight north to within 10 miles of a junction with the Canadian First army, which itself hammered five miles southward in a new surge.

The U. S. First army once more was lashing out from its Erft river bridgehead—now 11 miles wide—toward Cologne, which was under heavy bomber attack with four of its five bridges destroyed.

Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson was disclosed to have hurled seven infantry and three armored divisions, 150,000 men, into the offensive which in a week has destroyed five German infantry divisions of the 15th army and heavily mauled three panzer divisions.

Fleeing Troops Bombed

The battered remnants were fleeing across the Rhine, some under American artillery fire and under an aerial scourging. Elements of 10 divisions facing the Canadians likewise were in flight.

The smoke of American shellbursts mingled with the smoke from the factories of Duesseldorf, administrative center of the Ruhr basin with a population of 539,000.

The suburb of Neuss, itself with a normal population of 60,000, held out but a short time before the charge of the 83rd Infantry division.

Ten miles to the northwest, the 102nd division in a 10-mile advance captured Krefeld, a steel and railway city of 170,000 population.

Between the two cities, the Second armored division also reached the Rhine last night almost simultaneously with the 83rd division and today captured Doesinghoven, three miles south of the Germans' main Rhine escape bridge on the superhighway east of Krefeld.

Germans Sealed Off

To the west the 35th infantry and the Eighth armored divisions sealed off an undetermined number of Germans left along the once-formidable Maas river line south of Venlo, and, striking seven miles northwest of that fallen citadel, captured Straelen.

In the broad sweep, which won control of the Rhine plain all the way from the Maas 30 miles eastward to the Rhine, the Ninth army captured such small industrial cities as Duelken and Viersen, with a combined population of about 30,000.

JUNIOR RIFLE CLUBS PLANNED

Designed For Prevention Of Juvenile Hunting Accidents

Lansing—The department of conservation announced today that it is working out a plan for the organization of junior rifle clubs throughout the state as one means of attempting to lower the rate of juvenile hunting accidents.

All conservation officers will be trained to qualify as instructors in cooperation with the National Rifle Association. They will also assist local conservation and sportsmen's clubs, American Legion posts, and other interested organizations in promoting clubs of boys from 10 to 18 years of age. The aim of the junior rifle clubs will be primarily to instruct boys in the safe use of firearms.

The program is a part of a hunting safety campaign started by the department last year in an attempt to lower accidents occurring during the fall hunting seasons. Last fall there was an unusual number of accidents caused by juveniles. A later investigation made by the department showed that most of such accidents resulted from carelessness in the handling of their firearms by youthful hunters. It is hoped by the department that the proposed junior rifle club program will result in teaching thousands of boys throughout the state, the fundamentals of using guns.

H. R. Sayre, chief of the department's division of field administration, said that he hoped to have all conservation officers qualified as instructors within a few months. "While we expect the junior clubs to be started by various interested organizations," Sayre said, "the conservation officer will be able to facilitate them in their work, and later will be available as an instructor to the club." Training will be offered with both rifles and shotguns.

AWARDED BRONZE STAR — Lt. Col. Jenkins has been awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious service in action, it was learned yesterday.

The citation received from Major General Walter E. Lauer, commanding officer, is as follows:

"On the morning of ——— December, 1944, Lt. Col. Jenkins, Commander officer of the ——— Engineer Battalion, distinguished himself by his sound and most courageous leadership of his engineer battalion attached to the ——— Infantry Division, by successfully meeting and delaying vicious attacks from Panzer Forces of the German Army in and about ———, Belgium.

"As a result of Colonel Jenkens' courageous and steadfast leadership, this powerful enemy was successfully delayed to permit successful measures to be taken for the security of the Division sector.

"For this meritorious and exemplary service, he is awarded the Bronze Star."

The Battalion newspaper, comments on the award as follows:

"This can hardly be called a 'scoop' by now but it's still news to most of us. Col. Jenkins was awarded the Bronze Star at the time when the going was hot and furious. The Commanding General of a division we were supporting made the award 'on the spot' for extraordinary leadership. This publication, speaking for the battalion, if it may, says: 'Congratulations to the Colonel for the well deserved award.' "

PHILIPPINES TO SEND NO SUGAR

Japanese Ruined Island Crop; More Beets Are Needed

Any increase in the American sugar supply this year must come from the domestic beet and cane sugar industries, according to reliable trade reports.

A report from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters on Luzon has blasted the war food administration's hopes that some sugar for export might be found on the Philippines after the islands were liberated.

"Many sugar men had thought that since the Japs needed sugar for alcohol the cane industry in the islands would be in reasonably good shape," states Investor's Reader in a survey of the Philippines industry. "They had figured wrong.

Japs Made No Replantings

"The Japs sapped the plantations to the limit. They used the sugar for alcohol as long as the cane was available, but made little effort to replant or cultivate. In the first year of Jap occupation the famed $35,000,000 Central Azucarera de Tarlac produced 300,000 gallons of fuel alcohol. The next year's production dropped 50 per cent and last year it nose dived to 10,000 gallons.

"Now this modern Philippine plant is badly in need of repairs and no cane has been planted in the Tarlac Central for three years. Plantation officials report that all the cane this year will be needed for transplanting the new crop next November."

Refineries Are Damaged

Philippine officials have reported nearly all the refining plants in the islands have either been destroyed or badly damaged. They said it will take a long time to restore the plants for resumption of milling operations.

Before Pearl Harbor the United States normally received 1,000,000 tons of sugar from the Philippines annually or 15 per cent of its requirements. None has been received for three years.

Despite the loss of Philippine supplies, sugar distribution in the United States last year (7,147,709 tons) was the largest of any year in the last half decade except in 1940 (8,069,457 tons). In 1941, the year before Pearl Harbor, distribution totaled 6,890,000 tons.

Beet sugar processings last year (1,156,309 tons) were the smallest of any year in the last half decade. Highest year in the half decade was 1941 when 1,952,569 tons were produced.

The government is encouraging farmers to raise sugar beets this season by writing into its food-control programs provisions which allow sugar beet growers 25 pounds of ration-free sugar for each member in the family or 25 pounds of sugar for each acre of beets grown—which ever is the lesser.

B-29 Wonderful Plane, Globe Trotter Reports

BY ERNIE PLYE

In the Marianas Islands (Delayed) —The B-29 is unquestionably a wonderful airplane. Outside of the famous old Douglas DC-3 Workhorse, I've never heard pilots so unanimous in their praise of an airplane.

Pyle

I took my first ride in one the other day. No, I didn't go on a mission to Japan. We've been through all that before. I don't believe in people going on missions unless they have to. And as before, the pilots here all agreed with me.

But I went along on a little practice bombing trip of an hour and a half. The pilot was Maj. Gerald Robinson, who lives in our hut. His wife, incidentally lives at Albuquerque, N. M., on the very same street as our white house.

I sat on a box between the pilots both on the take off and for the landing, and as much as I've flown, that was still a thrill. These islands are all relatively small, and you're no sooner off the ground than you're out over water and that feels funny.

If the air is a little rough, it gives you a very odd sensation sitting way up there in the nose. For the B-29 is so big that instead of bumping or dropping, the nose has a "willowy" motion, sort of like sitting out on the end of a green limb when it's swaying around.

—Carries Crew of 11—

The B-29 carries a crew of 11. Some of them sit up in the cockpit and the compartment just behind it. Some others sit in a compartment near the tail. The tail gunner sits all alone, way back there in the lonely tail turret.

The body of the B-29 is so taken up with gas tanks and bomb racks that there's normally no way to get from front to rear compartments. So the manufacturers solved that by building a tunnel into the plane, right along the rooftop.

The tunnel is round, just big enough to crawl in on your hands and knees, and is padded with blue cloth. It's more than 30 feet long, and the crew members crawl back and forth through it all the time. Maj. Russ Cheever reported that he accomplished the impossible the other day by turning around in the tunnel.

On missions, some of the crew get back in this tunnel and sleep for an hour or so. But a lot of them can't stand to do that. I've heard combat crewmen bring up the subject a half dozen times. They say they get claustrophobia in the tunnel.

There used to be some sleeping bunks on the B-29, but they've been taken out, and now there's hardly even room to lie down on the floor.

A fellow does get sleepy on a 14-hour mission. Most of the pilots take naps in their seats. One pilot I know turned the plane over to his co-pilot and went back to the tunnel for "a little nap," and didn't return for six hours, just before they hit the coast of Japan. They laughingly say he goes to sleep before he gets his wheels up.

—Comfortable on B-29—

The B-29 is a very stable plane and hardly anybody ever gets sick even in rough weather. The boys smoke in the plane, and the mess hall gives them a small lunch of sandwiches and oranges and cookies to eat on the way.

On mission days all flying crewmen, even those not going on the mission, get all the fried eggs they want for breakfast. That's the only day they have eggs.

The crewmen wear their regular clothes on missions, usually coveralls. They don't have to wear heavy fleece-lined clothes and all that bulky gear, because the cabin is heated. They do slip on their heavy steel "flak vests" as they approach the target.

They don't have to wear oxygen masks except when they're over the target, for the cabin is sealed and "pressurized"—simulating a constant altitude of 8000 feet.

Once in a great while one of the plexiglass "blisters" where the gunners sit will blow out from the strong pressure inside, and then everybody better grab his oxygen mask in an awful hurry. The crew always wears the oxygen mask over the target, for a shell through the plane "depressurizes" the cabin instantly, and they'd pass out.

The boys speak frequently of the unbelievably high winds they hit at high altitudes over Japan. It's nothing unusual to have a 150-mile-an-hour wind, and my nephew, Jack Bales, said that one day his plane hit a wind of 250 miles an hour.

Another thing that puzzles and amuses the boys is that often they'll pick up news on their radios, when still only halfway home, that their bombing mission has been announced in Washington. Thus all the world knows about it, but they've still got a thousand miles of ocean to cross before it's finished. Science, she is wonderful.

BETTER DAIRY HERDS SOUGHT

Breeding Program To Be Discussed At Series Of Five Meetings

In an effort to continue the better breeding program for Delta county dairy herds and obtain higher production, a series of five meetings have been scheduled in the county for dairy farmers at which George McIntyre, Chatham, extension dairy specialist, will outline the advantages of using better sires.

E. A. Wenner, county agricultural agent, yesterday said that he has reviewed milk production on 97 herds in Delta county and was "unhappily surprised to find that a very high percentage of the cows are producing between 2,000 and 4,000 pounds of milk per year."

"I don't believe we dare go into the postwar period with dairy herds of this small production," he said. "In many cases the farmer would derive more income if he sold the cows and then sold the feed.

"I believe the better way, and one that is much more sound, is to increase production of the herds by use of better sires," Wenner said.

The county agents of the Upper Peninsula, in cooperation with the U. P. Development Bureau, will repeat the bull purchasing program which was started last year. In 1944 there were 27 better grade bulls placed in this county, and scores in other counties. Wenner described the program as "the greatest stride in dairying that the county has had in the past 10 years."

At the meetings to be held March 7 and 8 McIntyre will, with colored slides, illustrate the better breeding program. The meetings are scheduled as follows:

Wednesday, March 7—2 p. m. Bark River town hall; 8 p. m. Kasten school, Ford River Switch.

Thursday, March 8 — 10 a. m. Stonington town hall; 2 p. m. Rapid River high school (upstairs); 8 p. m. Flat Rock town hall.

Three Scout First Aid Contests Are Completed In City

With the completion of the midwest first aid contest of Troop 454, sponsored by the local Lions club, and directed by Scoutmaster Louis Linden, three-fifths of the local contests have been completed. Troop 444, sponsored by the Kiwanis club with Clarence Zerbel and Al Starr as Scoutmasters, entered four teams in the first contest and completed with an average of 97 per cent; Troop 453, sponsored by the Rotary club with John Edick as Scoutmaster, entered two teams and completed with an average of 96.9 per cent.

Each team was given a series of four problems based upon the requirements of second class first aid in Scouting.

Troop 454 consisted of two teams: Covered Wagon patrol, Richard Gilbert, Wallace Larson, William Benard, Gordon Hallstrom and Duaine Benard; score, 98.3 per cent. Stag patrol, Robert Linden, Robert Frazer, Arne Rian, Harvey Miller and Bruce Whitmarsh; score, 95.3 per cent. The latter patrol is a new patrol and this year marks its entry into first aid Scout contests. Robert Linden served as trainer. Other personnel of the contest were: problem announcer, Clifford Vadnais; judges, Dr. Rudolph Erickson and Harvey Germanson; doctor, Robert Clayton; recorder, William Cashin; patients, Harold Chevroette and Howard Larson; timekeeper, Arthur Kallstrom. Average for the two teams, 96.8 per cent.

The balance of the contests will be held on March 5 for Troop 450, sponsored by the First Methodist church, Ted Baldwin and Al Christensen, Scoutmasters, and Troop 455, sponsored by the Bethany Lutheran Brotherhood, Stanley Johnson, Scoutmaster, will be held on March 13.

The next contest in order will be the neighborhood contests wherein all of the above teams scoring 90 per cent or better, will participate on given problems to achieve an "A" rating or 90 per cent or better, which will enable them to compete further into the district contest. Date of the next contest will be announced soon.

Car License Plate Must Be Attached

Your new 1945 automobile license plate must be attached to the rear of your car to conform with the law, motorists were advised yesterday by the Escanaba police department.

Some motorists after purchasing their new plate carry it in a window of the car, or carry it elsewhere inside, the police said.

Since the state is issuing but one plate in wartime, the license plate is to be attached to the rear of the car.

PUSH CAMPAIGN FOR RED CROSS

Solicitors Report Fine Response; Hope For Record Drive

In one of the most auspicious starts for any wartime fund raising drive in Delta county, the 1945 Red Cross War Fund campaign yesterday appeared headed for a speedy and successful attainment of the $37,900 county quota.

Solicitors from residential areas in Escanaba, three of whom have already completed their block assignments, reported they had gone far over their block quotas. In all parts of the city the drive was reported "going strong."

George Lindenthal, general drive chairman, said that E. E. Bennett, chairman of the industrial committee, reported excellent progress in the opening of the campaign for funds to "keep your Red Cross at his side." Announcement of the progress of the drive in dollars and cents contributed is expected within a day or so.

All over the county the drive got under way Thursday to a good start. From Gladstone and the townships came early reports of generous public response wherever the solicitors had called.

In Escanaba Thursday night the city council authorized an appropriation of $1,200 to the Red Cross from utility revenues, comparable to the contributions made by private industries of the community.

Cooperating with the Red Cross drive and to boost their business contribution as high as possible, Sam Rouman and George Prokos, proprietors of the Boston Sweet Shop, 1000 Ludington street, are designating Tuesday, March 6, as "Red Cross Day" at their shop.

On that day their entire gross receipts will be turned over to the Red Cross. Three Red Cross women volunteer workers will be in charge of the cash registers that day, and at the close of business the drive officials will accept the contribution.

The plan was proposed by the shop proprietors who said: "We hope business is good that day. The better it is, the more for the Red Cross fund."

Aussies Much Like Us, Says Gerald St. Jacques

"Everything works backwards in Australia," is the opinion of Pvt. Gerald St. Jacques, who recently returned to Escanaba. "The seasons are reversed, and winter comes in July. It is colder in the south than in the north, people drive on the left side of the road, and even eat with their knives and forks reversed." St. Jacques spent two years in Brisbane, but found the Aussies very much like Americans in other respects. "The cities, particularly Sydney, closely resemble those in the United States," he said.

Shortly after he arrived in Australia, Pvt. St. Jacques was seriously injured when exploding gasoline ignited his clothes. George (Bud) Lieungh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thor Lieungh of Escanaba, put out the fire, and was awarded a soldier's medal for his act of heroism. St. Jacques received bad burns on both legs and one hand and was in the hospital eight months.

When he recovered, he was transferred to the quartermaster corps, working in the staging area where he had opportunity to meet soldiers arriving, and others being sent back to the States. In this capacity, both in Australia, and later in New Guinea, he met several Escanaba boys: Granville Roeder, Hubert Erickson, Pete Reynolds, Ralph Johnson and a Richards boy.

Pvt. St. Jacques made the acquaintance of an Australian family, with whom he often spent the weekend. "They were very hospitable. The Yanks were popular with the people of Brisbane," he said. "The food was more English than American, consisting mostly of mutton and potatoes, with very few salads or vegetables. Rationing hit them hard at the beginning of the war . . . both clothing and food were scarce. Many cars burned charcoal instead of gasoline."

St. Jacques frequently saw General MacArthur when the officer's headquarters were in Brisbane. He also saw Mrs. Roosevelt when she visited Australia, and Joe E. Brown and Gary Cooper.

Pvt. St. Jacques, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas St. Jacques, 324 South Eighth street, has been given a letter of commendation from his commanding officer. Home for the first time in three and a half years, he is spending part of his furlough at the family home, and will leave soon for Chicago to visit with his mother who is in a hospital there. He will report to Miami, Fla., for reassignment.

Course In Tractor Maintenance To Be Offered In County

Plans are being made through the office of E. A. Wenner, county agricultural agent, for a tractor maintenance course which will be offered within the next two months to a group of farm youths. Purpose of the course will be to have farm tractors operate better this coming summer, and wear longer.

Dates of the meetings are to be announced later, but the first will not be held until after the middle of March.

Five young men have been named to attend from the county, and in their areas they will be leaders to interest others in taking the courses. They are Royce Gustafson, John Moser, Walter Solis, Patty DeBacker and Ben Gonsheski. Other young farmers interested in taking the course are asked to contact one of the five named above.

Some of the subject matter to be discussed at the meetings will include fuel and carburetor systems, air cleaners, ignition and spark plugs, cooling systems, lubrication and other tractor maintenance work.

The classes will be conducted by a representative of the Standard Oil company.

The inventor of metal heel plates for shoes was enriched by $1,500,000 through his invention.

16 GIRL SCOUT UNITS PLANNED

Wide Interest Shown In Program Here; More Leaders Sought

Organization of 16 Girl Scout troops in Escanaba is under way, and because of the increasing interest in the program additional leaders will be required as new units are established, it was announced yesterday.

One hundred and ninety-eight Escanaba girls have indicated they are interested in becoming Girl Scouts as a result of questionnaires recently distributed through the public schools. The questionnaires have been distributed in the parochial schools late this week and will be returned Monday. It is expected that additional numbers of girls will be revealed as prospective Scouts when the inquiries are collected, Girl Scout leaders said.

Of the 198 total to so far, 95 girls are in the Brownie age group, 93 are in the intermediate age group, and 18 are in the senior group. The senior group are girls who made direct contact with Girl Scout leaders, for questionnaires were not distributed in the high schools.

In all of the first two groups, the girls will become members with the written consent of their parents, whose names were required to be attached to the questionnaire.

In the recent leader training program, 16 adults completed the course and have been enrolled as leaders. They are from all sections of the city, representating all school districts.

Additional leaders will be required as the organization of Girl Scout troops continues, and the training program will be maintained as long as the need for training continues.

JUNIOR RIFLE CLUBS PLANNED

Designed For Prevention Of Juvenile Hunting Accidents

Lansing—The department of conservation announced today that it is working out a plan for the organization of junior rifle clubs throughout the state as one means of attempting to lower the rate of juvenile hunting accidents.

All conservation officers will be trained to qualify as instructors in cooperation with the National Rifle Association. They will also assist local conservation and sportsmen's clubs, American Legion posts, and other interested organizations in promoting clubs of boys from 10 to 18 years of age. The aim of the junior rifle clubs will be primarily to instruct boys in the safe use of firearms.

The program is a part of a hunting safety campaign started by the department last year in an attempt to lower accidents occurring during the fall hunting seasons. Last fall there was an unusual number of accidents caused by juveniles. A later investigation made by the department showed that most of such accidents resulted from carelessness in the handling of their firearms by youthful hunters. It is hoped by the department that the proposed junior rifle club program will result in teaching thousands of boys throughout the state, the fundamentals of using guns.

H. R. Sayre, chief of the department's division of field administration, said that he hoped to have all conservation officers qualified as instructors within a few months. "While we expect the junior clubs to be started by various interested organizations," Sayre said, "the conservation officer will be able to facilitate them in their work, and later will be available as an instructor to the club." Training will be offered with both rifles and shotguns.

AWARDED BRONZE STAR — Lt. Col. Jenkins has been awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious service in action, it was learned yesterday.

The citation received from Major General Walter E. Lauer, commanding officer, is as follows:

"On the morning of ——— December, 1944, Lt. Col. Jenkins, Commander officer of the ——— Engineer Battalion, distinguished himself by his sound and most courageous leadership of his engineer battalion attached to the ——— Infantry Division, by successfully meeting and delaying vicious attacks from Panzer Forces of the German Army in and about ———, Belgium.

"As a result of Colonel Jenkens' courageous and steadfast leadership, this powerful enemy was successfully delayed to permit successful measures to be taken for the security of the Division sector.

"For this meritorious and exemplary service, he is awarded the Bronze Star."

The Battalion newspaper, comments on the award as follows:

"This can hardly be called a 'scoop' by now but it's still news to most of us. Col. Jenkins was awarded the Bronze Star at the time when the going was hot and furious. The Commanding General of a division we were supporting made the award 'on the spot' for extraordinary leadership. This publication, speaking for the battalion, if it may, says: 'Congratulations to the Colonel for the well deserved award.' "

PHILIPPINES TO SEND NO SUGAR

Japanese Ruined Island Crop; More Beets Are Needed

Any increase in the American sugar supply this year must come from the domestic beet and cane sugar industries, according to reliable trade reports.

A report from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters on Luzon has blasted the war food administration's hopes that some sugar for export might be found on the Philippines after the islands were liberated.

"Many sugar men had thought that since the Japs needed sugar for alcohol the cane industry in the islands would be in reasonably good shape," states Investor's Reader in a survey of the Philippines industry. "They had figured wrong.

Japs Made No Replantings

"The Japs sapped the plantations to the limit. They used the sugar for alcohol as long as the cane was available, but made little effort to replant or cultivate. In the first year of Jap occupation the famed $35,000,000 Central Azucarera de Tarlac produced 300,000 gallons of fuel alcohol. The next year's production dropped 50 per cent and last year it nose dived to 10,000 gallons.

"Now this modern Philippine plant is badly in need of repairs and no cane has been planted in the Tarlac Central for three years. Plantation officials report that all the cane this year will be needed for transplanting the new crop next November."

Refineries Are Damaged

Philippine officials have reported nearly all the refining plants in the islands have either been destroyed or badly damaged. They said it will take a long time to restore the plants for resumption of milling operations.

Before Pearl Harbor the United States normally received 1,000,000 tons of sugar from the Philippines annually or 15 per cent of its requirements. None has been received for three years.

Despite the loss of Philippine supplies, sugar distribution in the United States last year (7,147,709 tons) was the largest of any year in the last half decade except in 1940 (8,069,457 tons). In 1941, the year before Pearl Harbor, distribution totaled 6,890,000 tons.

Beet sugar processings last year (1,156,309 tons) were the smallest of any year in the last half decade. Highest year in the half decade was 1941 when 1,952,569 tons were produced.

The government is encouraging farmers to raise sugar beets this season by writing into its food-control programs provisions which allow sugar beet growers 25 pounds of ration-free sugar for each member in the family or 25 pounds of sugar for each acre of beets grown—which ever is the lesser.

B-29 Wonderful Plane, Globe Trotter Reports

BY ERNIE PLYE

In the Marianas Islands (Delayed) —The B-29 is unquestionably a wonderful airplane. Outside of the famous old Douglas DC-3 Workhorse, I've never heard pilots so unanimous in their praise of an airplane.

Pyle

I took my first ride in one the other day. No, I didn't go on a mission to Japan. We've been through all that before. I don't believe in people going on missions unless they have to. And as before, the pilots here all agreed with me.

But I went along on a little practice bombing trip of an hour and a half. The pilot was Maj. Gerald Robinson, who lives in our hut. His wife, incidentally lives at Albuquerque, N. M., on the very same street as our white house.

I sat on a box between the pilots both on the take off and for the landing, and as much as I've flown, that was still a thrill. These islands are all relatively small, and you're no sooner off the ground than you're out over water and that feels funny.

If the air is a little rough, it gives you a very odd sensation sitting way up there in the nose. For the B-29 is so big that instead of bumping or dropping, the nose has a "willowy" motion, sort of like sitting out on the end of a green limb when it's swaying around.

—Carries Crew of 11—

The B-29 carries a crew of 11. Some of them sit up in the cockpit and the compartment just behind it. Some others sit in a compartment near the tail. The tail gunner sits all alone, way back there in the lonely tail turret.

The body of the B-29 is so taken up with gas tanks and bomb racks that there's normally no way to get from front to rear compartments. So the manufacturers solved that by building a tunnel into the plane, right along the rooftop.

The tunnel is round, just big enough to crawl in on your hands and knees, and is padded with blue cloth. It's more than 30 feet long, and the crew members crawl back and forth through it all the time. Maj. Russ Cheever reported that he accomplished the impossible the other day by turning around in the tunnel.

On missions, some of the crew get back in this tunnel and sleep for an hour or so. But a lot of them can't stand to do that. I've heard combat crewmen bring up the subject a half dozen times. They say they get claustrophobia in the tunnel.

There used to be some sleeping bunks on the B-29, but they've been taken out, and now there's hardly even room to lie down on the floor.

A fellow does get sleepy on a 14-hour mission. Most of the pilots take naps in their seats. One pilot I know turned the plane over to his co-pilot and went back to the tunnel for "a little nap," and didn't return for six hours, just before they hit the coast of Japan. They laughingly say he goes to sleep before he gets his wheels up.

—Comfortable on B-29—

The B-29 is a very stable plane and hardly anybody ever gets sick even in rough weather. The boys smoke in the plane, and the mess hall gives them a small lunch of sandwiches and oranges and cookies to eat on the way.

On mission days all flying crewmen, even those not going on the mission, get all the fried eggs they want for breakfast. That's the only day they have eggs.

The crewmen wear their regular clothes on missions, usually coveralls. They don't have to wear heavy fleece-lined clothes and all that bulky gear, because the cabin is heated. They do slip on their heavy steel "flak vests" as they approach the target.

They don't have to wear oxygen masks except when they're over the target, for the cabin is sealed and "pressurized"—simulating a constant altitude of 8000 feet.

Once in a great while one of the plexiglass "blisters" where the gunners sit will blow out from the strong pressure inside, and then everybody better grab his oxygen mask in an awful hurry. The crew always wears the oxygen mask over the target, for a shell through the plane "depressurizes" the cabin instantly, and they'd pass out.

The boys speak frequently of the unbelievably high winds they hit at high altitudes over Japan. It's nothing unusual to have a 150-mile-an-hour wind, and my nephew, Jack Bales, said that one day his plane hit a wind of 250 miles an hour.

Another thing that puzzles and amuses the boys is that often they'll pick up news on their radios, when still only halfway home, that their bombing mission has been announced in Washington. Thus all the world knows about it, but they've still got a thousand miles of ocean to cross before it's finished. Science, she is wonderful.

BETTER DAIRY HERDS SOUGHT

Breeding Program To Be Discussed At Series Of Five Meetings

In an effort to continue the better breeding program for Delta county dairy herds and obtain higher production, a series of five meetings have been scheduled in the county for dairy farmers at which George McIntyre, Chatham, extension dairy specialist, will outline the advantages of using better sires.

E. A. Wenner, county agricultural agent, yesterday said that he has reviewed milk production on 97 herds in Delta county and was "unhappily surprised to find that a very high percentage of the cows are producing between 2,000 and 4,000 pounds of milk per year."

"I don't believe we dare go into the postwar period with dairy herds of this small production," he said. "In many cases the farmer would derive more income if he sold the cows and then sold the feed.

"I believe the better way, and one that is much more sound, is to increase production of the herds by use of better sires," Wenner said.

The county agents of the Upper Peninsula, in cooperation with the U. P. Development Bureau, will repeat the bull purchasing program which was started last year. In 1944 there were 27 better grade bulls placed in this county, and scores in other counties. Wenner described the program as "the greatest stride in dairying that the county has had in the past 10 years."

At the meetings to be held March 7 and 8 McIntyre will, with colored slides, illustrate the better breeding program. The meetings are scheduled as follows:

Wednesday, March 7—2 p. m. Bark River town hall; 8 p. m. Kasten school, Ford River Switch.

Thursday, March 8 — 10 a. m. Stonington town hall; 2 p. m. Rapid River high school (upstairs); 8 p. m. Flat Rock town hall.

Three Scout First Aid Contests Are Completed In City

With the completion of the midwest first aid contest of Troop 454, sponsored by the local Lions club, and directed by Scoutmaster Louis Linden, three-fifths of the local contests have been completed. Troop 444, sponsored by the Kiwanis club with Clarence Zerbel and Al Starr as Scoutmasters, entered four teams in the first contest and completed with an average of 97 per cent; Troop 453, sponsored by the Rotary club with John Edick as Scoutmaster, entered two teams and completed with an average of 96.9 per cent.

Each team was given a series of four problems based upon the requirements of second class first aid in Scouting.

Troop 454 consisted of two teams: Covered Wagon patrol, Richard Gilbert, Wallace Larson, William Benard, Gordon Hallstrom and Duaine Benard; score, 98.3 per cent. Stag patrol, Robert Linden, Robert Frazer, Arne Rian, Harvey Miller and Bruce Whitmarsh; score, 95.3 per cent. The latter patrol is a new patrol and this year marks its entry into first aid Scout contests. Robert Linden served as trainer. Other personnel of the contest were: problem announcer, Clifford Vadnais; judges, Dr. Rudolph Erickson and Harvey Germanson; doctor, Robert Clayton; recorder, William Cashin; patients, Harold Chevroette and Howard Larson; timekeeper, Arthur Kallstrom. Average for the two teams, 96.8 per cent.

The balance of the contests will be held on March 5 for Troop 450, sponsored by the First Methodist church, Ted Baldwin and Al Christensen, Scoutmasters, and Troop 455, sponsored by the Bethany Lutheran Brotherhood, Stanley Johnson, Scoutmaster, will be held on March 13.

The next contest in order will be the neighborhood contests wherein all of the above teams scoring 90 per cent or better, will participate on given problems to achieve an "A" rating or 90 per cent or better, which will enable them to compete further into the district contest. Date of the next contest will be announced soon.

Car License Plate Must Be Attached

Your new 1945 automobile license plate must be attached to the rear of your car to conform with the law, motorists were advised yesterday by the Escanaba police department.

Some motorists after purchasing their new plate carry it in a window of the car, or carry it elsewhere inside, the police said.

Since the state is issuing but one plate in wartime, the license plate is to be attached to the rear of the car.

PUSH CAMPAIGN FOR RED CROSS

Solicitors Report Fine Response; Hope For Record Drive

In one of the most auspicious starts for any wartime fund raising drive in Delta county, the 1945 Red Cross War Fund campaign yesterday appeared headed for a speedy and successful attainment of the $37,900 county quota.

Solicitors from residential areas in Escanaba, three of whom have already completed their block assignments, reported they had gone far over their block quotas. In all parts of the city the drive was reported "going strong."

George Lindenthal, general drive chairman, said that E. E. Bennett, chairman of the industrial committee, reported excellent progress in the opening of the campaign for funds to "keep your Red Cross at his side." Announcement of the progress of the drive in dollars and cents contributed is expected within a day or so.

All over the county the drive got under way Thursday to a good start. From Gladstone and the townships came early reports of generous public response wherever the solicitors had called.

In Escanaba Thursday night the city council authorized an appropriation of $1,200 to the Red Cross from utility revenues, comparable to the contributions made by private industries of the community.

Cooperating with the Red Cross drive and to boost their business contribution as high as possible, Sam Rouman and George Prokos, proprietors of the Boston Sweet Shop, 1000 Ludington street, are designating Tuesday, March 6, as "Red Cross Day" at their shop.

On that day their entire gross receipts will be turned over to the Red Cross. Three Red Cross women volunteer workers will be in charge of the cash registers that day, and at the close of business the drive officials will accept the contribution.

The plan was proposed by the shop proprietors who said: "We hope business is good that day. The better it is, the more for the Red Cross fund."

Aussies Much Like Us, Says Gerald St. Jacques

"Everything works backwards in Australia," is the opinion of Pvt. Gerald St. Jacques, who recently returned to Escanaba. "The seasons are reversed, and winter comes in July. It is colder in the south than in the north, people drive on the left side of the road, and even eat with their knives and forks reversed." St. Jacques spent two years in Brisbane, but found the Aussies very much like Americans in other respects. "The cities, particularly Sydney, closely resemble those in the United States," he said.

Shortly after he arrived in Australia, Pvt. St. Jacques was seriously injured when exploding gasoline ignited his clothes. George (Bud) Lieungh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thor Lieungh of Escanaba, put out the fire, and was awarded a soldier's medal for his act of heroism. St. Jacques received bad burns on both legs and one hand and was in the hospital eight months.

When he recovered, he was transferred to the quartermaster corps, working in the staging area where he had opportunity to meet soldiers arriving, and others being sent back to the States. In this capacity, both in Australia, and later in New Guinea, he met several Escanaba boys: Granville Roeder, Hubert Erickson, Pete Reynolds, Ralph Johnson and a Richards boy.

Pvt. St. Jacques made the acquaintance of an Australian family, with whom he often spent the weekend. "They were very hospitable. The Yanks were popular with the people of Brisbane," he said. "The food was more English than American, consisting mostly of mutton and potatoes, with very few salads or vegetables. Rationing hit them hard at the beginning of the war . . . both clothing and food were scarce. Many cars burned charcoal instead of gasoline."

St. Jacques frequently saw General MacArthur when the officer's headquarters were in Brisbane. He also saw Mrs. Roosevelt when she visited Australia, and Joe E. Brown and Gary Cooper.

Pvt. St. Jacques, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas St. Jacques, 324 South Eighth street, has been given a letter of commendation from his commanding officer. Home for the first time in three and a half years, he is spending part of his furlough at the family home, and will leave soon for Chicago to visit with his mother who is in a hospital there. He will report to Miami, Fla., for reassignment.

Course In Tractor Maintenance To Be Offered In County

Plans are being made through the office of E. A. Wenner, county agricultural agent, for a tractor maintenance course which will be offered within the next two months to a group of farm youths. Purpose of the course will be to have farm tractors operate better this coming summer, and wear longer.

Dates of the meetings are to be announced later, but the first will not be held until after the middle of March.

Five young men have been named to attend from the county, and in their areas they will be leaders to interest others in taking the courses. They are Royce Gustafson, John Moser, Walter Solis, Patty DeBacker and Ben Gonsheski. Other young farmers interested in taking the course are asked to contact one of the five named above.

Some of the subject matter to be discussed at the meetings will include fuel and carburetor systems, air cleaners, ignition and spark plugs, cooling systems, lubrication and other tractor maintenance work.

The classes will be conducted by a representative of the Standard Oil company.

The inventor of metal heel plates for shoes was enriched by $1,500,000 through his invention.

16 GIRL SCOUT UNITS PLANNED

Wide Interest Shown In Program Here; More Leaders Sought

Organization of 16 Girl Scout troops in Escanaba is under way, and because of the increasing interest in the program additional leaders will be required as new units are established, it was announced yesterday.

One hundred and ninety-eight Escanaba girls have indicated they are interested in becoming Girl Scouts as a result of questionnaires recently distributed through the public schools. The questionnaires have been distributed in the parochial schools late this week and will be returned Monday. It is expected that additional numbers of girls will be revealed as prospective Scouts when the inquiries are collected, Girl Scout leaders said.

Of the 198 total to so far, 95 girls are in the Brownie age group, 93 are in the intermediate age group, and 18 are in the senior group. The senior group are girls who made direct contact with Girl Scout leaders, for questionnaires were not distributed in the high schools.

In all of the first two groups, the girls will become members with the written consent of their parents, whose names were required to be attached to the questionnaire.

In the recent leader training program, 16 adults completed the course and have been enrolled as leaders. They are from all sections of the city, representating all school districts.

Additional leaders will be required as the organization of Girl Scout troops continues, and the training program will be maintained as long as the need for training continues.

It's Just a Guess

INDICATIVE of the futility of any effort to definitely estimate the cost of any post-war institutional construction program, is the revelation that such a program perfected by the Michigan Planning Commission at an estimated cost of $59,000,000, a year ago, would now cost the state of Michigan at least $90,000,000. The difference of $31,000,000 represents the estimated advance in costs of labor and material on the projects planned in a single year. In the face of this most unhealthy and unprecedented situation, the state planning commission has decided to make piecemeal requests for funds from the legislature to finance a post-war building program, rather than endeavor to guess the cost of an over-all building schedule.

In the state treasury there has been accumulated $9,000,000 in funds ear-marked for the use of the planning commission and for the current fiscal year's budget a request has been made for an additional ten million dollars, out of regular state tax funds, with similar additions in future years as long as the need exists.

Under present conditions and in view of the startling advance in costs in the last year, there is no agency that can accurately state today just how much building a million dollars will buy a year from now. The program, now faced, is both unsatisfactory and unbusinesslike but would seem to be the only safe course to pursue.

Postwar Opportunity

NATIONAL leaders in the winter sports field recently visited the Porcupine Mountains and acclaimed the area as offering the best skiing to be found anywhere in the Middle West. Among these experts was Roger Langley of Barre, Mass., president of the National Ski association, who has been long prominent in the development of winter sports in New England.

Reporting on the experts' visit, Director P. J. Hoffmaster of the Michigan Conservation department said the group was impressed with the quality of the snow, the length of the skiing season and the fact that two railroads serve the Porcupines area.

Perhaps this information does not mean much to the casual reader, but those who are deeply interested in the promotion of the Upper Peninsula as a year-round vacation land will be greatly encouraged. The prospect of having the Upper Peninsula, with its Porcupine Mountains, Iron Mountain, Ishpeming, Escanaba, Gladstone and other winter sports areas, as the mecca for skiing enthusiasts from the great Middle West region, is something to excite the imagination. It presents tremendous opportunities, which the people should attempt to capitalize in every way possible.

There is the general feeling that the American people will go in for recreation in a bigger way after the war. They will want to enjoy life to the utmost, and there is no better way of achieving this objective than by taking the fullest advantage of the healthful outdors. The Upper Peninsula, with its winter sports, hunting, fishing, swimming, scenery and other attractions, has an important role to play in this postwar scheme of living.

Report from Yalta

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S report to the nation on the Yalta conference, while obviously lacking in information on some of the vital military decisions made by the Big Three in the Crimea, sounded an emphatic note for American participation in a world peace organization after the present world-wide conflict is over.

In this plea, President Roosevelt made plain his conviction that the people of the United States no longer can turn their backs to political and military developments in other parts of the world. This is a lesson that we first learned in 1918 but that we didn't really grasp until 1941. If the American people concur in the convictions of Mr. Roosevelt, it means the end of isolationism in this country and that the United States is now prepared to assume the responsibility of the world's greatest nation in participating in a program to preserve the peace of the world for generations to come.

Military decisions of great importance undoubtedly were made at Yalta that were not disclosed by Mr. Roosevelt in his address to the Congress and to the American people Thursday. That is understandable, since the effectiveness of those military decisions is predicated to a considerable extent upon secrecy.

In the matters of political decisions, however, the president was more frank. The demilitarization of Germany and Japan after the war will be thoroughly accomplished. The Russo-Polish boundary agreement was a compromise settlement of one of the most vexing problems in Europe. These and other political matters were discussed by the president with bold frankness.

Underlying the principal theme of his address, however, was a direct appeal, perhaps the first of a series that will be made by the president before the San Francisco conference in April, for American acceptance of a full sense of responsibility in a world organization for peace.

County Fairs Approved

AMERICA'S historic institution, the country agricultural fair, is not to become a casualty of war, according to an official government statement, but the ban against big-time horse racing meets continues in effect.

There is much that can be said in favor of keeping the county fair. Since it attracts visitors from relatively short distances, it will not impose any undue strain on transportation facilities. For many decades, the county fair has been closely linked with agricultural progress, lending encouragement to the American farmer to grow bigger and better crops. Its purposes are just as important in wartime when there is increased demand for the foodstuffs produced on the farms of this country.

Retention of the county fair should not in any way offer an argument for the lifting of restrictions on the racetracks at Miami, Louisville and other racing centers. They are in no way essential to the war effort. Their emphasis is on gambling, and they result in a considerable waste of manpower, gasoline, automobile tires and other transportation facilities.

TRAINING FURNITURE EXECUTIVES

(Grand Rapids Press)

The proposal to establish a four-year course at the University of Michigan to provide specialized training in furniture manufacture is an example of the kind of far-sighted planning which will help to keep the industry abreast of the times in the postwar period. The curriculum the university board of regents will be asked to approve covers many technical and administrative phases of the task of preparing young men for positions of leadership and responsibility in the furniture field.

Choice of the University of Michigan as the institution to launch the project is advantageous because of its proximity to the Grand Rapids furniture industry. Through the close liaison which presumably would be maintained between the theoretical side of the problems of management as taught in the classroom and their practical application as encountered in the factory, the students at Ann Arbor would have the inspiration of the high standards of quality and design represented by the Grand Rapids industry and the latter in turn would enjoy the stimulating experience of encouraging the development of youthful minds bent on a successful career in an executive capacity.

Gracie Allen Says

Girls, have you tried to buy your husband some underwear lately? It seems there's a terrific shortage of shorts.

I couldn't find a single pair for George. And when they're out of George's size that's something, because there's little demand for his peculiar dimensions. From the waist down, George is what we women would call a "stylish stout," and from the waist up, he's more of a "junior Miss."

Anyway, the situation at our house is so desperate that I started to make George a pair of shorts out of a sugar bag, but along came the paper bag shortage and now I have to use it for groceries.

So, today, I searched the house over for some good, strong pieces of material that I might sew together to cover his little tummy, and I found just the thing—pot holders. Appropriate, don't you think so?

CORREGIDOR

(A Scrapbook Item)

Cambridge: You will do us all a valuable service by using your column to emphasize the correct pronunciation of the now revered name Corregidor.—A. H. T.

Answer: The fortified island which lies in the narrow entrance to Manila Bay has for its name the Spanish word for "corrector." Corregidor also designates a magistrate, or a mayor.

During the Japanese invasion of Luzon, which was followed by the tragedy of Bataan, the name Corregidor sprang into prominence and was immediately Americanized in pronunciation. It is unlikely that the Spanish pronunciation, kore-ray-hee-THAWR (American-Spanish: kore-ray-hee-DAWR), can now be re-established.

But perhaps we may finally agree on a uniform American pronunciation, and thus spare ourselves the sound of the ugly corruption "kuh-RIGGY-dore."

I have checked the nation's leading broadcasters and find them generally in agreement on this pronunciation, which accents the second syllable and rhymes it with "keg, peg": koe-REG-i-dawr.

As to Bataan, it too seems to have fallen a victim of the American ineptness with foreign place names. The correct native pronunciation is: bah-tah-AHN.

Especially unlovely is the pronunciation which rhymes Bataan with "attan."

If the tragic and historic name must be Americanized, let us preserve it in a form that will have some semblance of its native flavor. Give both "a's" the "ah" sound, and accent the second syllable, thus: bah-TAHN.

The personal pronouns often stump the best of us. If I-me, he-him, she-her, etc., confuse you, send for my PERSONAL PRONOUNS pamphlet which contains a simple key that will enable you to select the correct pronouns without fail. Send a stamped (3c), self-addressed envelope to Frank Colby, in care of this paper.

World Events Analyzed

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Headquarters, Mediterranean Allied Air Command—Under this command, which to a casual observer seems outside the main focus of the war, are thousands of planes and hundreds of thousands of men — more planes than the German Luftwaffe had at the height of its power.

Childs

The Mediterranean command includes Italy, Southern France, the Balkans and a part of the Middle East. It covers a complexity of political as well as technical troubles and, in some respects, seems to be to suggest a working design for the future.

—FUTURE BELONGS TO AIR—

In the course of this quiet swing through the European war, I have written a great deal about our air power. There are several reasons for this. One is that, with customary thorough organization, the Army Air Force have made it possible to see their operations in every phase. But a more important reason is my conviction that the future belongs to the air.

The future in peace, no less than in war, is in the airplane and we have, it seems to me, only begun to understand the social and political implications of this machine that has annihilated space.

Two weapons have come out of the war with profound meanings for the years to come—jet propulsion planes and rocket bombs. If we allow those weapons, with their astonishing potentialities, to be developed by rival nationalisms for war-making purposes, then our civilization, which may just avert complete disaster this time, will certainly be destroyed once and for all.

—INTERNATIONAL AIR FORCE—

It is with this threat in mind that I see portents of hope in the air force that has been put together in the Mediterranean, for it is truly an international air force.

Under Lt. General Ira C. Eaker, here in this part of the world that was the cradle of our civilization, nine nationalities are flying daily missions to defeat Germany. In Eaker's squadrons are pilots and crews from Brazil, Greece, Poland, France, New Zealand, South Africa, Australia, Great Britain and the United States.

Moreover, the command is truly international. Usually in combined operations — for example, between British and Americans—two officers, one of each nationality, are assigned to the same task. Here in the Mediterranean, one officer is assigned to do a job regardless of nationality. It seems to work with a reasonable degree of harmony.

—COULD KEEP PEACE—

Presumably, when the war is ended, this international command will be dismantled. But why should it necessarily be taken apart? Why should it not serve as a nucleus for an international air force to keep peace?

It seems too valuable a precedent to discard lightly. It offers a working formula for the kind of cooperation that must come if we are to rescue ourselves from ultimate and final doom.

Eventually, in peacetime, this international air force could be expanded to include all nationalities in proportion to their air strength. Here is no less than the pattern for a United Nations air force, to wipe out the start that has been made here would seem to be a tragic waste. Sooner or later, in peace as in war, we must come to some such internationalism of the air.

The maturity and responsibility shown by airmen such as Eaker give the hope that this is not just a remote ideal but a real prospect for the post-war future.

Eaker's organizational genius has long since been demonstrated. It was almost three years ago today that he arrived in England, with five other officers and a briefcase full of plans, to help organize the Eighth Air Force. What he did in England is history, and the course of the war is so swift that today it seems almost like ancient history.

—FRIENDLY WITH TITO—

Now, in the Mediterranean, he has played an important part in the assembling of this extraordinary international air armada.

Inevitably, as head of such a force, Eaker has to make decisions with broad political and diplomatic implications. So far as I have been able to judge, he has moved through troubled waters in this part of the world with great skill.

He has formed a friendship with Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito. His knowledge of the ins and outs of the Balkans and the Mediterranean is broadened by daily contacts.

Britain's Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder is a counterpart of Eaker in the new internationalism of the air. There are others like them on both sides of the Atlantic.

Here, perhaps, is the formula for the future. If only we have the wisdom to make use of the lessons learned in war, then all this seemingly endless horror may not have been in vain.

AD - WRITER'S FRENZY — There is nothing quite so impossible to capture in this life as the fine white fire kindled by the boys and girls who write the advertisements. The frenzy with which they approach their subject is out of this world. The ecstacy of their passionate prose is without parallel this side of Paris, France, in the dear days before the all-night stands were closed by the exigencies of war.

Dunathan

And this flair for purple feelings expressed in cold black and white of print is not confined to the big city papers, or the periodicals for fancy ladies. It comes right down to the home town.

For instance, here is a sample from an advertisement in the Escanaba Daily Press as of March 1, 1945:

"Heady hypnotic — the 'forbidden' perfume by Dana. Sultry . . definitely hypnotic . . . the headiest perfume in all the world . . . delicious on the skin . . . even more disturbing on gowns and furs . . . Tabu is a perfume to leave alone unless you can meet its challenge!"

So there you are. Buy a bottle and put on your boxing gloves.

And in the same issue there is a deft little line describing spring blouses. It says they are "fresh as a crocus and full of enchantment." If you wore one of those blouses and spilled a bottle of perfume down your front it wouldn't be safe to unlock the door for several weeks.

BOBBY-SOX POET — One of the local younger generation who wishes to remain anonymous, writes: "I read your column and think it is fine the way you encourage local poetry. I have written two poems which I hope you will publish in your column. One is written as a response to a poem by Mrs. Carlton, who loves trees and birds. The other is a little ode which I think captures some of the zest of the northwoods." She signs herself Miss Gritch from Ford River Switch, which makes it all good clean fun. Only one of the verses can be used at this time. It follows:

SINATRA SINGING

I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree.
A tree in heaven like the one
Described by Mrs. Carlton.
Who wants to hear, with bated breath,
A wee bird singing, after death.
Children, poets, birds love trees—
Include me out with such as these.
On golden streets, with harp-strings ringing,
I'd rather hear Sinatra singing.
Miss Gritch.

Dear Miss Gritch:

Your candor is refreshing. So you don't like children, poets or trees but you look forward to Sinatra making a personal appearance in heaven. Under the circumstances I think you had better slap a Sinatra platter on the phonograph and swoon again. Heaven can wait.

LETTERS TO MANILA — Mrs. Margaret R. Norton of Gladstone has some advice on addressing letters to persons in Manila, P. I., now the Yanks have the Japs cleared out of the way.

Martin Olson, a friend of Mrs. Norton's since both are natives of Cumberland, Wis., was a resident of Manila at the time the Japs took over. He had lived there since the Spanish-American War. Confined in a concentration camp during the period of Jap occupation, he is now free again.

Mrs. Norton last wrote him Nov. 17, 1944. He received the letter Feb. 5 and replied the following day. She had written after seeing a notice posted in Red Cross headquarters in Escanaba that mail to persons in the Philippines would be delivered as soon as they were liberated.

Because the post office is not yet accepting mail addressed to civilians in Manila, Mrs. Norton suggests using the following address: (Name of addressee), Civilian War Relief Section, APO 442, care Postmaster, San Francisco, Calif.

GETS DEMOTED — Walter Long, now 65, a screen actor for 40 years who gained early fame by chasing a young lady over a cliff in "Birth of a Nation," has been demoted. He was a lieutenant colonel in the army when he was retired a year ago. Now the veteran actor has the role of a captain in the New York stage success "Follow the Girls."

Long visited Escanaba several times in the good old days of stock theater with the Laura Yinston Stock Co., and married Lauray Robley, an Escanaba girl.

Today he is the highest ranking officer on the stage. Once fairly prominent as "the most hated man in the movies". Long has received more sympathetic roles on the stage.

Mustered out of the last war as an army captain, Long promptly stepped into a movie role with the same rank. But last year after retiring as a lieutenant colonel, he finds himself demoted to the stage rank of captain.

INTO THE PAST

10 Years Ago—1935

Reminders of the days when cows grazed on Escanaba streets, bicycles were a menace and hitching posts a necessity, many of Escanaba's old city ordinances are doomed to the discard in a new revision of city laws ordered by the city council. The task of weeding out the obsolete and culling over the ordinances which need revision has been turned over to the city attorney's office, and Assistant Attorney Thomas J. Rushton is checking over the yellowed and fading record books written in long-hand, which tell the story of the be-whiskered days in Escanaba, incorporated as a city in 1883. Attorney Rushton is finding some surprising and amusing items as he reads through the official records of past city fathers.

NEW YORK—At the City Center last night Leopold Stokowski conducted a new concerto, in which there were many discords. When it was over there was some scattered hisses. Stokowski turned to the hissers and said: "When we first played this piece, we couldn't quite get it. And it surprises me that you should make up your minds about it so definitely, and grasp it so quickly, from listening to it but once. I think we'd better play it again." The orchestra played it again . . . This time there was applause and no hisses.

THERE HAS been much speculation over the identity of the people on whom John Gunther based the characters in his novel, "The Troubled Midnight." These are the facts: The girl, Leslie, is a composite of three of Gunther's friends. Ambassador Spalding is Norman Armour, our Ambassador to Spain. The seven-year-old Turkish girl in the novel is a baby version of Bubbles Schinasi, to whom the book is dedicated. Robin, the tycoon, is a completely imaginary figure. The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

(Lt. Col. R. S. Allen now on active service)

Washington—Biggest shake-up in the high command since General Eisenhower's appointment as European Commander is being discussed backstage at the White House. Some of it also is reported to have been studied at Yalta.

Pearson

The shake-up will be aimed at solving two difficult problems: (1) Cooperation with the Russian general staff, despite the fact that Russia is not in the war against Japan; and (2) the tug-of-war between Admiral Nimitz and General MacArthur as to who will command the final drive on Tokyo.

The No. 1 problem, involving Russia, probably will be worked out by setting up a separate branch of the combined chiefs in Europe with General Omar Bradley, Field Marshal Montgomery, and Marshal Zhukov as its members. They will function in regard to the European war only, will have nothing to do with the war against Japan.

The No. 2 problem of who will command the knock-out blows against Japan has been the subject of considerable army and navy wire-pulling. General MacArthur and his friends have been conducting a vigorous backstage campaign for his over-all appointment.

On the other hand, the navy points out, with considerable truth, that if it were not for the tremendous concentration of ships around the Philippines and the skillful operations of Admiral Nimitz, MacArthur's campaign would have gotten nowhere. Nimitz not only was able to land troops for MacArthur, but operated his fleet so adroitly that after the initial Leyte operations, the Japs were unable to send reinforcements to Luzon.

At first, President Roosevelt considered solving the feud by designating Admiral King as supreme commander in the Pacific. This, however, brought a terrific howl from MacArthur and wouldn't have been welcomed by Nimitz either.

Final solution therefore probably will be the appointment of General Marshall as over-all Pacific Commander immediately after Germany is defeated. He would be over-all commander of both the army and the navy and of the entire Allied operation against Japan.

Simultaneously, General Eisenhower would be brought back to Washington to take Marshall's place as chief of staff. General Bradley would then carry on in Europe as commander-in-chief of the American forces.

—CHURCHILL SPEAKS RUSSIAN—

Prime Minister Churchill tried out some of his newly learned Russian on Stalin at Yalta—with disappointing results.

At several points during the meeting, Stalin had come up with expressions which he thought were proper English, such as "What's Cookin'?", "what the hell goes on here?", taught him by his ambassador to Washington, Mr. Gromkyo.

So Churchill decided to match Stalin by trying out some of his newly learned Russian. Rattling off what he thought was perfectly good Russian, the Prime Minister looked around proudly and waited for Stalin to reply.

Nothing happened. Stalin looked puzzled. Then Stalin's interpreter said:

"Excuse me, Mr. Prime Minister. I didn't understand the language you were talking. I only speak two languages myself—Russian and English. Would you mind saying it in English or in Russian?"

Churchill, Stalin and Roosevelt all joined in the laugh that followed.

—VICHYITE INTRIGUE—

It was announced in Paris recently that Jacques Lemaigre-Dubreuil, who arranged for Admiral Darlan to turn up in North Africa, had been arrested by De Gaulle.

However, it has remained a mystery as to how De Gaulle got hold of the famous Vichyite, since he had been living in Portugal. At first it was assumed that he had gone back to France on a visit and was then nabbed by French police.

Real story of Lemaigre-Dubreuil's arrest, however, has now come back through uncensored diplomatic sources. Actually, he was kidnapped at night in a small Portuguese village near Estoril. Lemaigre-Dubreuil and Jean Rigault, another close friend of U. S. Charge d'Affaires Bob Murphy, had rented a house in the Portuguese suburb and were asleep one night when a group of Frenchmen woke them up and, at the point of a gun, put them into a fishing boat. They were then taken back to France.

Certain state department officials are reported jittery over what will happen when these two Vichyites are put on trial by De Gaulle.

Lemaigre-Dubreuil was one of the most famous big business lobbyists of France, was founder of the "Taxpayers' League," a founder of the Fascist Cagoulards, and subsidized various French Fascist papers before the war. He helped sell Murphy on the idea of cooperating with the Vichy government, and when De Gaulle took over North Africa, Murphy helped Lemaigre-Dubreuil escape in an American automobile.

FOUR MEETINGS ARE SCHEDULED

OPA Dairy Expert Will Address Farmers Here March 7

Officials of the Office of Price Administration announced yesterday that H. H. Varney, agricultural relations advisor of Region III, will be in the Upper Peninsula early in March for a series of meetings with farmers. Four meetings have been scheduled at which cooperating committees will be organized for the four major agricultural areas in the peninsula.

Specialists from the Escanaba district office will accompany Mr. Varney on his visits.

Experienced Dairyman

The purpose of the meetings is to give the regional and district offices an opportunity to discuss various farm problems with dirt farmers, both in an effort to acquaint them with the agricultural problems confronting OPA and to find out from them how OPA may better serve agriculture.

Before joining OPA, Mr. Varney was in charge of extension work among farmers in Ohio, under the supervision of Ohio State University. He entered the employ of the government as a price specialist on dairy and agricultural products. He continues to be in charge of the milk price adjustment policy in Region III. His reputation as a specialist in dairy products is well established throughout the middle-west.

Four Meetings Planned

A series of four meetings have been planned at central points, but the sponsors emphasize the fact that farmers are not limited to the area in which they live if another area is more convenient.

The four places selected are Rudyard, Bruce's Crossing Houghton and Escanaba.

The Escanaba meeting is for farmers in the central portion of the peninsula including Menominee, Delta, Dickinson, Marquette and Alger counties. It will be held at the City Hall at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday March 7.

Officials of the government agency emphasize the fact that the meetings are not limited to farmers only, but are open to all persons interested in farming and to farm groups.

A major activity will be the formation of a committee in each one of the four areas for the purpose of cooperating with OPA in farm problems and for the rapid collection and dissemination of timely information on crops and their movement to market.

Each area committee will be asked to name one of their members to act on a larger Upper Peninsula board. The plan is to conserve on tires and gas as much as possible.

Considerable time will be alloted for a questions and answers period when representatives from the District Office will explain regulations and advise farmers on their problems. Current problems are farm slaughtering, milk, hay, grain, feed prices and the special problems on rationing of gas and tires for farm purposes.

Wild Goose Unkie Of Blaney Is Dead

Blaney Park, Mich.—Unkie is dead and there is mourning here at the "bird observatory" of Dr. Karl Christofferson for a wild goose known in the Upper Peninsula for his willingness to fight anything and everything that invaded his domain.

For 15 years the big Canadian honker ruled the roost at T Lake where Dr. Christofferson, former dentist at the Soo and superintendent of Munoscong State Park, has been conducting bird banding experiments since 1930.

Unkie was trapped with his mate when he dropped in from the skies for a rest and free dinner. After brief imprisonment in a pen, he decided to make the lake his home and established himself as boss of the bird life at the sanctuary.

He became a combination of bully, burglar alarm, watchdog and guardian of the premises, enforcing his will by clublike blows of his wings and rapier thrusts of his bill. He tackled automobiles, dogs, un-accompanied visitors, housemaids and picnickers, usually winning an undisputed verdict.

"But one day he sailed into a porcupine that ventured too close to the nest on which his mate was incubating a clutch of eggs," Dr. Christofferson said. "He accumulated so many quills he looked like a pin cushion, and I had to use a pair of pliers for their removal."

Instead of appreciating his valiant action, the mate became disgusted with Unkie, who drooped around as a convalescent for several weeks. She refused to sit on the eggs, and then completed her displeasure by flying north.

"That put more kinks in Unkie's disposition. If visitors came when I wasn't around, he honked an alarm I could hear a mile and sallied forth to drive them away.

"He held no respect for age, sex or prominence. Hearing a big commotion at the lake, I saw Unkie on top of a former lieutenant governor of Michigan, apparently trying to eat the buttons from his shirt. The official slipped when Unkie charged him, and the gander took advantage of the situation immediately."

Tough as he was, he was no match for a younger gander who dropped in last fall. The younger gander drove Unkie from the lake. Disconsolate and weary, he old battler lived in the woods until a coyote got him. But he went out fighting, for the turf was torn up where all that remained of him was found—a wing grayed by blows at the assassin.

Two Rivers, Wis., Gets Results In Recreation

Two Rivers, Wis.—This city of 11,000 on the Lake Michigan shore in northeastern Wisconsin, has demonstrated that a supervised recreational program and community center can be operated successfully.

Young and old participate in the indoor and outdoor activities. Much of Two Rivers' success is due to the fact that the community started on the right foot.

First of all, J. E. Hamilton, Two Rivers industrialist and civic leader, decided back in 1930 that the spick and span little city needed a downtown recreation and social center. He made a sizable financial gift to enable the city to build an attractive Lannon stone structure, which now represents a total investment of a quarter million dollars.

Eckley Is Born Leader

Then, Two Rivers was fortunate in obtaining the services of Arthur P. Eckley, a born leader of young and old, as the recreational director. Art Eckley is the sparkplug in the building and the entire community. As a result of his leadership and ingenuity, there is always something doing, and last year the J. E. Hamilton Community House had a total attendance of 120,000. It is the rendezvous for Two Rivers citizens, from the kindergarten age to the eighties.

A typical week's program is crowded with the following activities: athletics, craft shop, tap and social dancing, game room, dramatics for grade school age, adult athletic groups, bowling, billiards, handball, boxing, motion pictures, drum corps drill, tumbling, and parties. In addition, the community house is rented by adults for activities not sponsored by the recreation department, such as stage productions, dances, basketball games, card parties, banquets and general meetings.

Eckley was principal in a Two Rivers school when the late J. E. Hamilton donated the money for the recreation center. Hamilton was a man who, on making a fortune, really did something for a lot of people in the community where he made his money.

He's Busiest Man

Born in Dallas, Wis., 43 years ago, Eckley attended a small town grade school and River Falls State Teachers college. After going to Two Rivers in 1923 he was named director of recreation, having charge of the park program and the community hall since 1931 when the building was dedicated.

Eckley is the busiest man in Two Rivers, and he accomplishes a lot. There is no waste motion. He was for years secretary of the Rotary club, past exalted ruler of the Elks, past master of the Masons, many years superintendent of the Congregational church Sunday school, secretary of the Manitowoc county defense council, secretary of the Wisconsin Amateur Athletic Union and secretary of the Two Rivers Community club, the town's chamber of commerce.

He will talk at the drop of an invitation, and make a top notch toastmaster, with a lot of wit and original stunts on any program from a church conference to a stag meeting of lodge members.

Before the war, New York offered Eckley a fancy salary to head up a state recreation program. Ask him why he refused and you get this answer, "I like Two Rivers and its people."

Marquette Seeking Veterans Hospital

Marquette, Mich. — A steering committee of the Marquette Chamber of Commerce, empowered to "do anything and everything possible" to bring about selection of Marquette as the location of the 250-bed U. S. veterans hospital which is to be erected in the Upper Peninsula, has ben appointed and has begun work, it was announced yesterday by Roscoe W. Baldwin, president of the Chamber.

Mr. Baldwin is chairman of the committee and serving with him are Mayor James J. Beckman, Earl H. Closer and Ben H. DeVoe, secretary of the Chamber. The steering committee has been authorized, Baldwin said, to name as many sub-committees as it deems necessary and to give definite assignments to each.

Efforts to gain favorable consideration of Marquette as a site for the new hospital were begun months ago by the Chamber of Commerce, first steps being taken as soon as it became apparent that an Upper Peninsula hospital would be included in the U. S. Veterans Administration expansion program. At that time maps of the city and the Upper Peninsula, together with considerable data about Marquette, were submitted to Washington authorities and correspondence was carried on continually with members of Congress from the Twelfth district and with Michigan Senators regarding the proposed project.

The steering committee was appointed a few days ago when Mayor Beckmen and Mr. Closser, who went to Washington, D. C., as representatives of the city and the Chamber of Commerce, returned home. Spending several days in the Capital, they interviewed U. S. Senators Arthur H. Vandenberg and Homer Ferguson, Rep. Frank E. Hook, Gen. Frank T. Hines, chief of the U. S. Veterans Administration, and others. They have made a detailed report to the Chamber of Commerce board of directors and it was at their suggestion that the steering committee was named.

Looking at Our Lakes

The Great Lakes are coming into their own as a theme for books. At a time when you would least expect it, while the paper shortage is more acutely with us than ever, writers and publishers are turning to this subject that has been crying for attention for years.

Three volumes in what is called the "American Lake Series" have recently been published, all three of them concerned with the Great Lakes. Presumably many other important lakes will be included in the series, but at least members of the Great Lakes chain are getting early attention. The three are "Lake Michigan," by Milo M. Quaife; "Lake Superior," by Grace Lee Nute; and "Lake Huron," by Fred Landon.

It is hardly reasonable to expect great literature in a series written to order. About all that can be asked for is that such books shall be readable and shall contain the type of information that the general reader is looking for. In any event, the mere fact that this subject is being exploited by competent writers is all to the good.

Written independently from this series, apparently as a work of love and not on order is a new volume simply called "The Great Lakes," by Harlan Hatcher. A native of the Great Lakes region, and a person who for years has been intimately acquainted with the lore and the literature of the Lakes, Hatcher was in a favored position to produce a book that is not merely readable but that at the same time catches something of the life and spirit of the Lakes. His book comes nearer to being belles-lettres than such volumes usually are.

This renewed literary preoccupation with the subject of the Great Lakes recalls the fact that writers of the past from time to time tried their hand at the theme. I recall particularly one such book, published perhaps 15 or 20 years ago: "We Discover the Great Lakes," by Mr. and Mrs. Webb Waldron, the words by the former and the pictures by the latter. Although they had been born and brought up in the Lakes region, like most of the inhabitants of the Lakes states they had more or less taken the Great Lakes for granted until one day they hit on the notion of seeing them for themselves from the deck of a lake freighter and visiting the out of the way ports along its shores. The result was a highly entertaining volume, now unfortunately more or less forgotten.

There have been other books of that kind from time to time, but the subject of the Great Lakes has not as yet begun to be exploited as it might be. There is still plenty of literary gold in those lakes, and writers will certainly mine it in years to come.

Greatest possibilities of all lie in the field of fiction. Our novelists have so consistently overlooked the Great Lakes that I can't recall any truly great novel concerned with this subject. Many novelist have used the Great Lakes as a kind of fictional decoration, to give an atmosphere of picturesqueness to their background, but no one, so far as I know, has done a story in which the Great Lakes are to the story what the ocean is to the books of Joseph Conrad or Herman Melville. The Great Lakes are sometimes in novels, but such books are never stories that would be unthinkable without the Lakes. In Melville or Conrad the ocean is always the greatest character; in such Great Lakes novels as I have read the Lakes are more scenery.

Recently I received a letter from a new writer, Louis Kintziger, announcing that he is to publish a novel of the Lakes in the spring, to be called "Bay Mild." It is announced as the story of the commercial fishermen by a man who is himself a commercial fisherman. I am hoping against hope that this novel will be it.

Ask General Eisenhower what your RED CROSS is doing for our Fighting Men

GENERAL "IKE" knows—better than anybody else—how many of his wounded G.I. Joes are saved from death by life-saving Red Cross Blood Plasma!

He knows how a young soldier worries when there's no news from loved ones—or bad news—and how his spirits rise when a special Red Cross Home Service message says everything is O.K. at home.

General "Ike" knows the way a bombing crew, back safe from a perilous mission, go for the coffee and doughnuts the Red Cross girls serve! He knows how the Red Cross is always on the job at the front—day and night—to make G.I. Joe's life a little more like the life he left—back home in the U.S.A.

And this is what General "Ike" says about the Red Cross:

"We simply couldn't get along without it. I consider the Red Cross an auxiliary of my army. They are doing a perfectly magnificent job in every way."

ASK G.I. JOE

He'll tell you what the Red Cross does for him—and how! Listen to this boy's letter to his dad:

"Pop, whenever the Red Cross comes to you for money, give what you can spare, as they are wonderful to us."

And here's another:

"Dad, if you help anything or anybody, please give to the Red Cross because they help us. Plenty! If it wasn't for them, I don't know what our overseas soldiers would do. So Dad, do as I say. Help the Red Cross just for me!"

ASK YOURSELF

Ask yourself: "Have I done as much as I can for my Red Cross—which is at my boy's side—ready to aid, comfort and cheer him?"

You can't do too much to help the devoted workers in this great Army of Mercy—who risk their lives over and over again to bring our millions of G.I. Joes the proof that they are not forgotten by their home folks.

The Red Cross is doing your job—doing for your boy what you can't do. But you can help by giving more to the Red Cross now. Its job is stupendous—and it's growing bigger.

Give as much more as you can—today!

GIVE NOW— GIVE MORE

Nesting Habits Of Birds Differ

By Fern Berry

Days of March may be pleasant days or they may be stormy enough to keep us indoors. But, if we do wander a-field we can find an interesting study in the nests of the birds which have remained through the winter.

Of course, the bigger hawks and the crows will have had their summer home high in some tree, a bulky nest of coarse materials. Or the cuckoo will have built her shoddy nest in a low bush which the snow may have covered from sight. If you pass the orchard or a thorn tree you may see the nest of the king bird or bee martin, or the bulky nest of the migrant shrike for these two birds like the thorn trees for nest building.

But, if you look closely into the evergreen trees you may see the shabby nest of the bluejay, the myrtle or magnolia warbler. The latter are small and neat.

The ruby-throated hummingbird makes a nest which is the jewel of all nests—and it is pretty difficult to find for it is well concealed, and you will probably think it is a tiny knot grown over with lichen.

Wood Pewee makes a tiny but substantial nest in a bush while the dainty goldfinch builds a more bulky, but a silk lined nest as does the blue or indigo bunting (plentiful in U. P.) The chipping sparrow makes a small neat nest, mostly of hairs or fibers and places it in a tree or shrub about the grounds, usually. The nest of the crow blackbird or bronze grackle is a bulky affair while that of the rose-breasted grosbeak is basket-like and neat but fragile. If you see a small nest in the small sapling or tree, placed in a fork, that is usually the nest of the redstart.

Small, Neat Nest

The red-eyed vireo makes a small cup or basket shaped nest and it can very often be found in the orchard or in a hardwood tree. The yellow warbler makes a neat little nest in a low tree or bush, built usually in a triple fork. The black-throated blue warbler (one of the plentiful U. P. warblers) builds low to the ground in a shrub, and the nest is often covered with snow during the winter. The chestnut sided warbler makes a small cup-shaped nest three feet from the ground.

The catbird builds in different locations. Its nest may be in your spirea bush or again it may be in a hedge or a low, pasture or fence corner thicket.

The brown thrasher is a low builder and often chooses the edge of the forest or plains for a nesting site.

In Lower Michigan the mourning doves, the hanging nest of the Baltimore oriole or the more bulky nest of the cardinal are to be seen.

South African Kaffirs gather caterpillars, crush their heads, dry them in the sun, and then pack them for future use as food.

Models complete to the smallest detail have saved millions of dollars in America's shipbuilding program, because they show up blueprint errors before actual construction begins.

SAULT NOT HOPEFUL

Sault Ste. Marie—Attempts by local groups to have a veterans hospital established at Fort Brady are not likely to succeed, Clifford D. Everett told members of the Welsh-McKenna post, V. F. W., Tuesday night.

The Veterans' administration at Washington of which Gen. Frank Hines is chief, would not approve the buildings, Everett said, any more than it approved use of the hospital building at the post here as a veterans hospital. The hospital at the fort, the administration pointed out is not fireproof and does not meet the hospital requirements outlined by the administration.

PRISONERS NOT CODDLED

Sault Ste. Marie—Coddling of German prisoners of war at Raco is nonsense and rumor, Captain F. H. Dettmar, public relations officer at Fort Sheridan, base camp for prisoners of war camps, told members of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce here last night.

Captain Dettmar, here to visit the Raco camp, activated January 27 with 250 men, now cutting chemical wood for the Newberry Lumber and Chemical company, said that all kinds of unsubstantiated rumors have been given currency.

For instance, he said, it is not true that favorite brand cigarets are sold to any of the 350,000 German prisoners of war in America today. They can buy a package of off-brand cigarets a week and tobacco.

Working Girl Hostess Tips

The homemaker who has a job outside of the home has little time for entertaining, but with careful planning, she can fit an occasional dinner party into her full schedule. Here are a few time-saving hints on preparing and serving a dinner as suggested by experts at the College of Home Economics at Cornell University:

1. Dust the house in the morning before going to work, and put guest towels in the bathroom.

2. Set the table in the morning or at noon, if you can; or do it as soon as you get home from work.

3. Frozen vegetables are a boon to the busy homemaker since they are already prepared and cook in a short time. If you use other vegetables, clean them the night before and place them in the vegetable crisper.

4. Plan desserts that can be partly or entirely made the night before. Pastry for pies or tarts is better if chilled in the refrigerator overnight.

5. If you don't have refrigerator rolls, sift together the dry ingredients for quick breads the night before and cover. Make the breads before the guests arrive and place the covered mixture in the refrigerator until baking time. Allow a bit more time than usual for baking.

6. Allow yourself at least two hours to prepare the dinner, from the time you get home until the guests arrive.

7. Use a large tray to carry dishes for table setting and when removing soiled dishes.

ROTARIANS NOTE ANNIVERSARY

Special Program Notes 40 Years Of Rotary International

Manistique Rotarians at their regular Monday meeting observed in appropriate manner the fortieth anniversary of International Rotary.

Principal speakers at the gathering were Dr. George A. Shaw, former district governor of Rotary International, Russell Watson and the local Rotary president, R. G. Hentschell.

Dr. Shaw reviewed the history of Rotary, recounting how Rotary was organized in Chicago on February 23, 1905, by Paul P. Harris, a lawyer, who suggested the form of organization to a few friends and with them instituted the club. From the beginning, Rotary has grown to a membership of 237,469 in 5,311 clubs throughout the world. Approximately 3,500 of these clubs are in the United States.

Highlights of Rotary's wide range of service over the past 40 year period were reviewed by Russell Watson who explained how Rotary, through the years, had worked for better understanding and good will throughout the world.

Stating that Rotary's policy in the future should be one of cooperation rather than competition or duplication in all community activities, R. G. Hentschell committed the local club to a broad program for the betterment of Manistique.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Chase and children, David and Judy, left Tuesday for St. Paul, Minn., where Mr. Chase was recently transferred.

BRONZE STAR MEDAL RECEIVED

Posthumous Award Given Local Boy Killed In Action

A bronze star medal, awarded posthumously by direction of President Roosevelt, to Sergeant Merence J. Michaels, was received this week by the soldier's mother, Mrs. Rose M. Michaels, 1122 Deer street. This medal is the second honorary medal received by Mrs. Michaels, the other a purple heart medal was received shortly after Mrs. Michaels had been notified of her son's death.

Accompanying the bronze medal, was the official citation which bears as the principal personal signators, the name of President Roosevelt.

The citation wording follows:

"For heroic service in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States in the vicinity of * * *, 17 September, 1944. After the First Battalion, * * * Infantry had taken * * *, it prepared to establish defensive positions on its eastern outskirts. When only a part of Sergeant Michaels' platoon had reached the defensive area, and before it had an opportunity to dig in, two companies of enemy infantry led by tanks counter-attacked. Unsupported by fire of any type, and despite the superior enemy force strengthened with machine gun and tank fire, Sergeant Michaels and eleven comrades stood their ground and fired upon the enemy, causing numerous casualties in its ranks. So courageous and daring was the action of Sergeant Michaels and his comrades, that the enemy counter-attack was checked, and when assistance arrived for the small group, the counter-attack was repulsed, the enemy was driven from the high ground it had retaken, and the defense of the town made secure. The courage, disregard for personal safety and tenacity of purpose displayed by Sergeant Michaels reflect credit upon his character as a soldier."

Louis Gasperich

Matt Gasperich

Three sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Gasperich of Kipling are serving their nation in the armed service and all three are in the Army Air Corps.

Youngest of the trio is S/Sgt. Matthew J. Gasperich, veteran of over 30 missions over occupied Europe and Germany and who is now enjoying a well-earned rest at a center in Tucson, Ariz. Sgt. Gasperich entered service in Nov. 1942 and went overseas in April of 1944, after receiving his wings at Tyndall Field, Fla. Serving as a waist gunner on a B-24 he made the 30 missions in less than 7 months, returning to the States late in November. After a 30-day leave here he went to the rest center where he is still stationed.

Matt hopes to become a gunner on a B-29 crew.

Next comes Air Student Rudolph Gasperich, 27, who is taking pilot training at Pecos, Texas, and expects to receive his wings and a commission in 7 more weeks if all goes well. Rudolph attended college in Reno, Nev., and was a master sergeant and chief armorer gunner before entering school. He entered service four years ago in November.

The third of the boys is Cpl. Louis P. Gasperich, 31, who is with a B-29 outfit in India. Cpl. Gasperich trained at Salt Lake City, Utah, and later in Kansas after joining in January 1943. In February 1944 he was sent to the Burma-China-India theater where he has been with the ground crew of one of the giant bombers.

Second Lieutenant Jack Tumath of the Army Air Corps has arrived from Great Bend, Kas., to spend a 7-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Tumath, Superior avenue.

ODT RULES OUT TRAINS 86-87

Public Service Comish Overridden; Says Soo Line Unfair

Lansing, March 2. (AP)—Florence M. Kiely, member of the state public service commission, said today that Col. J. M. Johnson, director of the Office of Defense Transportation (ODT), had over-ridden the commission and had authorized the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie railroad to cancel two trains between Gladstone and Sault Ste. Marie.

The commission last week asked the railroad to withhold the cancellation pending a hearing, asserting the railroad was exaggerating the smallness of its passenger load in order to come within an ODT order permitting cancellation of trains carrying less than 35 per cent of passenger capacity.

Miss Kiely said the commission would take no further action until it received an explanatory letter from Col. Johnson.

"Railroad Unfair"

"I do not understand the ODT action," Miss Kiely said. "The railroad has wanted to cancel this run for a long time and simply is seizing this chance to do so. It tried it twice before and once we had to go to court to force the railroad to continue serving the people of that area."

Miss Kiely said the ODT appeared to have accepted without question the railroad's "check" of passenger travel during January which indicated that its load was below the ODT minimum.

"The railroad has been unfair about this," she said. "They based their check on a 72-passenger coach, which never has been used on the run, instead of on the normally-used coach of 28-passenger capacity. Actually, the train carried more than 50 per cent of capacity during January. We so informed the ODT, but they seemed to have ignored us."

Miss Kiely said it was the first conflict in Michigan between the commission's powers and the ODT's authority under the president's war powers.

Miss Mary Becker has returned to Loretto following a trip to Marquette, where she attended a funeral, and a visit here with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Becker.

Flivvers Put Up Hard Battle To Final Whistle

The Eskymos defeated Kingsford, 44 to 36, in a fast basketball game that concluded the pre-tournament schedule for both teams here last night. The victory gave the Escanaba team the lower seeded position in the district basketball tournament at Iron Mountain and also revenged an earlier season defeat at the hands of the Flivvers.

After Kingsford snatched a 4 to 2 lead at the start of the game, the Eskymos started a scoring splurge that carried them to a 19 to 6 lead midway in the second period, but at that point the Flivvers rallied gallantly and narrowed the gap to 23-17 at half time.

Escanaba came back with another rush in the third period and stretched their advantage to 34 to 21. Once again the Flivvers retaliated to threaten in the fourth period and at one point trailed only by six points with several minutes still remaining to play. The Eskymos went on to sew up the victory in the remaining playing time.

Jack Finn led the scoring with 14 points but Ohman added 13 for the Eskymos. Baker scored 10 for the Flivvers.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

"What was the greatest baseball team of all time?" This question recently was put to baseball writers in the 11 major league cities by The Sporting News. The Yankees of 1927 drew 71 votes out of a total of 140, thereby swamping all other contenders. The Yankees of 1928 and 1929, virtually the same team as the 1927 aggregation, received 13 and 2 votes, respectively, so that in reality this aggregation of New York stars received the amazing total of 21.4 per cent of the total votes cast. Trailing far behind in second place is the Chicago White Sox team of 1919, the redoubtable Black Sox who threw the World's Series to Cincinnati.

* * *

The American league team polled 133 of the total of 140 votes cast, the Boston Braves of 1914 baseball's miracle team, getting three votes, the Cubs of 1906-'07-'08, one each, and the Giants of 1921-22 earning one vote. That the writers may have had an American league complex is indicated by the fact that none of the great Cardinal teams earned a single vote in the poll, although there were two ballots for the Athletics of 1931 and one each for the Tigers on 1934 and the Yankees of 1942, all defeated in World's Series competition by St. Louis teams.

* * *

Some visionaries of baseball foresee the World's Series of the future as just that and not only a series between pennant winners of the American and National leagues of the United States. Playoffs in many countries to decide which teams will play in the World's Series are envisional, since baseball is being given great impetus by American servicemen all over the world. Billy West, former president of the Birmingham Southern association club, sees the possibility of opening the series in New York one week-end and ending it the following week end in Moscow, or in England or France, or the South Pacific.

* * *

Silly, you say? Well, Ted Lyons now a Marine officer, former Chicago White Sox pitching star, explained the fine points of pitching recently to natives on Kwajalein through an interpreter, of course. He was surprised to learn that the natives had been playing baseball for 15 years, having learned the game from the Japs. The natives traveled from island to island in outriggers for baseball games and finally had a world series all their own, with the best team in the Marshalls meeting the best in the Carolines. The big series was held on Jaluit, a nearby atoll, and the winner was awarded, of all things a Japanese flag. Since Lyons left the natives have been sporting sore arms trying to master curves knucklers and fast balls.

* * *

The Detroit Tigers will march off to spring training camp at Evansville, Indiana on March 15, less than two weeks away. There have been no indications of holdouts among the Tiger camp. Pinky Higgins "talked business" the other day with General Manager Jack Zeller, but it is still uncertain whether Higgins will be available for duty with the Tigers since Uncle Sam is beckoning again. The Detroit manager says his team can operate through a full 154-game schedule with as few as 20 men, if necessary, but can't keep going if not permitted to retain 4-F's and 1-C's, the latter being discharged veterans.

Rock Giants Lick Eben; Score, 57-41

Eben, March 2—Rock pummeled Eben, 57 to 41, tonight as a result of a big scoring burst in the fourth period after the teams had battled on fairly even terms for three quarters of the game.

Kleiber rolled up the victory for Rock in the last half when he sank six successive goals, but although he scored 16 points in all, he was outscored by Lammi of Trenary, who counted 18 points for his team.

Haegg Finds Boards Soft For Practice

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

New York, March 2 (AP)—Gunder Haegg, Swedish mile swiftie, worked out on a board track for the first time today and found it much softer than the steel deck of a boat.

Haegg, who completed a month's voyage from Sweden only yesterday and runs against America's unbeaten 1945 mile champ tomorrow, jogged approximately a mile on the outdoor pine oval of New York University, testing various kinds of spiked shoes.

Both Haegg and Hurdler Haakon Lidman, another Swede, will compete in special events at the IC-4A indoor championships on Madison Square Garden's 11-lap track Saturday night.

Haegg will oppose Jim Rafferty, winner of five straight races this winter; Forest Efaw, national three-mile champ; Rudy Simms of New York, and Don Burnham, national 1,000 yard king.

Asked if he thought he could beat Rafferty, whose best time is 4:13.1, Haegg replied no, explaining he had had but six workouts on the 23-day ocean voyage.

"Do you think you can scare our Yankee runners?" he was asked.

"From what I hear Yankees don't scare easy," came the reply in 90 per cent Swedish and 10 per cent English.

Lidman bounced over a few hurdles in the brief workout, their only one except for a visit to the Garden tomorrow.

SCHNESE LOOPS WINNING GOAL

Gladstone Snatches Victory In Last Five Seconds

A field goal by Schnese with only five seconds of time remaining gave the Gladstone Braves a 33 to 32 decision over the Emeralds of Manistique at the Manistique gymnasium last night.

Manistique led throughout most of the last half, although the Braves held a 14-13 advantage at half time. The Emeralds appeared to have the game in the bag but three foul shots in the final minute of play brought the Braves to within one point of Manistique and then Schnese put in the clincher just before the gong.

The Emeralds outscored Gladstone on field goals, 13 to 12, but committed 21 fouls and were outshot from the free throw lane.

Near-Kayo Wins For Willie Joyce

New York, March 2—Stabbing his rapier-like left into Ike Williams' face all the way and all but knocking out his opponent in the last round, underdog Willie Joyce scored an upset unanimous 12-round decision over the Trenton, N. J., lightweight at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Williams, who is slated to fight Juan Zurita for the NBA lightweight title in Philadelphia next month, won only three of the 12 rounds and barely managed to stay on his feet as Joyce put on a whirlwind finish in the 12th round.

KILLED IN BELGIUM

Menominee— Lieutenant John A. Sherman, 24, of the Army, a son of Mrs. Arthur Sherman of Niagara, a former Menominee resident, and a grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Sherman early-day residents of Menominee, was killed in action in Belgium February 15, according to a message received by his mother.

Lieut. Sherman who left Menominee for Niagara 11 years ago, entered the service July 10, 1942, and went overseas with an artillery unit in the fall of 1944.

Following his graduation from Niagara high school he worked for the Kimberly-Clark company there.

MAY REBUILD HOTEL

Sault Ste. Marie—Sault Chamber of Commerce board of directors was told last night that if the Murray Hill company wishes to rebuild and secures financing, a War Production Board approval would be forthcoming.

Inquiries as to whether WPB approval would be given were answered affirmatively Tuesday by Fred Addison of Grand Rapids, War Production Board representative.

Hugh Shore, manager of the hotel which was destroyed in a fire Feb. 18, was understood to be in Detroit for conference with the owners of the hotel.

Trojans End Schedule With Baraga Tonight

The St. Joseph high school basketball team will wind up its pre-tournament season tonight, meeting Baraga of Marquette at the Bonifas gymnasium. The St. Joseph Reserves will meet the Escanaba Junior high school team in a reserve game at 7:15, with the main game scheduled for 8:30 o'clock.

Coach Fred Boddy will start Stropich and McCarthy, forwards; Teal, center; O'Donnell and Hirn, guards; with Don and Bob Lewis, Weber, Roberts and Fossbender on standby for reserve duty.

The Trojans lost to Baraga at Marquette earlier this season, 32 to 23, but the Marquette team has been revised considerably since then. The Trojans are anxious to win this game, not only to even the score with the Baragans, but also to finish the season with a winning percentage. They have won seven games to date, against six losses, and a victory tonight would give them a .571 average for the season.

Bill Puckelwartz and Dick Schram will officiate.

Chicago Pro Who Swore Off Leads Jacksonville Aces

Jacksonville, Fla., March 2. (AP)—Bob Hamilton of Chicago, who swore off golf three months ago because of his poor putting, held his lead through the second round of the $5,000 Jacksonville open today—chiefly by his brilliant performance on the greens.

The big bronzed pro, national PGA champion, carded a five under par 67 for a 132 total to keep two strokes ahead of Byron Nelson, Sam Snead, and Harold (Jug) McSpaden, tied at 134 for second place.

Hard on the leader's heels throughout the second round was Slamin' Sammy of Hot Springs, Va., who fired a 65 today to equal the Brentwood course record set yesterday by Hamilton. Snead bore down hard and pulled some sensational shots in a bid for his sixth victory of the winter circuit.

Nelson, of Toledo, O., shot a 66 today, and McSpaden of Sanford, Me., had a 67.

Next in line came Ky Laffoon of Chicago with a 66 for a 136 total and Craig Wood of Mamoroneck, N. Y., with 70 and 137.

The odds, which heavily favored Snead at the start, switched to Hamilton today because of his superb showing. PGA Tournament Manager Fred Corcoran recalled today that the blonde pro gave up golf "for good" three months ago when he had several flubbed-up rounds on the Pacific coast. A three-weeks' layoff brought a change of mind, however, and he has been burning up courses since.

PROFIT SELLING CRIMPS PRICES

BY VICTOR EUBANK

New York, March 2 (AP)—Spots of strength remained in today's stock market but the list, as a whole, succumbed to profit cashing on the recent climb to highest levels since 1937.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .3 of a point at 62 after three successive rising sessions. Of 976 issues recorded, 578 were down against 398 up or unchanged.

Safeway Stores jumped 5¼ to 63, new top, when the concern proposed a 3-for-1 stock splitup. Standard Gas 5s and $7 preferreds fell 5 and 5 7-8, respectively, while the $4 preferred rose 5-8, in the wake of a court decision disapproving the company's reorganization plan. Improved were Chicago & North Western common and preferred and Western Maryland.

On the offside were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, U. S. Rubber, Texas Co., Western Union "A", Kennecott, U. S. Gypsum and Douglas Aircraft.

Secondary railway bonds dipped. At Chicago wheat was up ¼ to 1 5-8 cents a bushel. Cotton was down 15 to 30 cents a bale.

In the curb minus signs were pinned on Electric Bond & Share, Cities Service, American Gas and Pennroad. Turnover here was 580,000 shares versus 560,000 the day before.

BONDS IRREGULAR

New York, March 2 (AP)—Railroad bonds encountered difficulty in negotiating a further rise today and fell back into an irregular range. Other groups were relatively steady, although advancing power was considerably less pronounced than in earlier sessions this week.

The rails, industrials and low-yields in the Associated Press averages ended unchanged and small declines were shown by the utilities and foreign issues. Sales contracted to $11,490,000 from $12,290,000 on Thursday.

While the carrier department gave more evidence than other groups of being tired from the sustained advance, numerous favorites pushed substantially ahead. Illinois Central Caine division 4s moved up 5 points to 105 and the road's 5s of 1955 added a point at 101½. Rock Island 4½s pushed up around 2 points and the refunding 5s advanced 1¼. Great Northern 5s also were firm at 133 7-8 and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico 5½s gained 1¼.

On the losing end for small amounts or ending unchanged after being ahead at one time or another were most of the listed bonds of the St. Paul, Baltimore & Ohio, North Western, Consolidated Edison, Duquesne Light, Empire Gas & Fuel, International Paper, Lehigh Valley, Missouri Pacific, Morris & Essex and New York Central. U. S. governments were steady but quiet.

S. No. 1, 2.69 to 2.85.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, March 2 (AP)—Grains eased after a sharp early advance today but rallied during the final hour to finish strong with gains ranging to well over a cent.

May wheat and corn reached new highs since early January and the near-by deliveries were strongest in other pits, reflecting the shortage of grain supplies in cash markets where receipts are held to a minimum by the freight car shortage.

At the finish wheat was ¼ to 1 5-8 higher than yesterday's close, May $1.66 3-8. Corn was up 1-8 to 5-8, May $1.14 1-8. Oats were 1-8 to 7-8 higher, May 67¼. Rye was unchanged to up 7-8, May $1.14 1-8 to $1.14¼. Zarley was 3-4 to 1 higher, May $1.10 1-8.

Corn futures were firm, supported by local buying encouraged by the broad demand in the cash market where buyers paid as much as one cent more a bushel than offered yesterday. Handlers reported only 50,000 bushels bought for deferred shipment from the country.

Following is a letter received by Mr. and Mrs. Aldrick Raymond of Cayette from their son, James, who is now in the Philippines, the first word from him in four months:

"Dear Folks:

"It's been a long time since I've written to you but I didn't have very much chance to do so. I haven't had any mail since September so you can tell how much we have been on the move. The last letter I wrote you was in September just before I left on my furlough in Australia. I did get to Sydney for about ten days and then I was called back to my outfit because we had something big coming up. I bet I get a lot of mail when I get back to my outfit.

"I'm not with my company now but with the Coast Guards. I think that I will be back with my outfit some of these days soon. I am feeling fine and I hope that you did not worry about me too much. When you don't hear from me for a long time, then you know that I am too busy to write. I think that we will have it easy for a while now. I hope so.

"Have you had much snow at home this winter so far? I haven't seen snow for two years now. I guess I'll forget how it looks if I stay out here very long.

"Please don't worry about me as I am just fine. I'll try and write as often as time permits me. Please write soon."

With Army Troops Somewhere in the Philippines—Now operating in the Philippines, Pfc. Sealander, Escanaba, Mich. Sealander is "sweating out" his second battle tour with a veteran front-line infantry outfit. Sealander has been overseas 18 months and fought at the Solomon Islands.

In civil life a high school student, he serves as assistant squad leader in this combat area, where remnants of once-strong Japanese forces are being liquidated by hard-driving doughboys.

In addition to his battle stars Sealander holds the Infantry Combat Medal, Good Conduct and Sharp Shooter Medals.

"The Filipinos are among the friendliest people I've ever seen," he says. "The youngsters in particularly are cute and smart. Nearly all of them understand English to a greater or lesser extent, and they sure hate those Japs."

For most of the troops in his outfit, the Philippinos are the closest approach to civilization they've seen in a long time. His outfit has specialized in the worst kind of jungle fighting for more than two years.

NAZIS DRIVEN OUT OF VITAL RUHR VALLEY

British troops who then sped on two and a half miles south to within a mile of Kevelaer, 10 miles from the Americans at Straelen.

Canadians six miles to the east swept forward five miles to within a mile and a half of the road junction of Sonsbeck as the Germans there likewise abruptly broke off contact.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army took a giant stride in its own drive for the Rhine with the capture of Trier, Germany's oldest city with a normal population of 88,000.

Prisoners Are Problem

The Third army was lashing out all along the 50-mile front gaining up to two miles, seizing nine more towns and so many prisoners that it was having difficulty taking care of them.

The Tenth armored and 94th infantry divisions, which took Trier, were grinding to bits a pocket of Germans caught southwest of the old fortress. Among the towns captured was Konz, one of the fort towns guarding the southern approaches to the city.

The Americans speared through Trier so swiftly that the Germans did not have time to touch off the dynamite to the south bridge. They managed to blow only one span from the north bridge.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' power-laden U. S. First army dug into the Germans fighting savagely from behind the slag heaps and hilltops to hold it back from the last five miles to Cologne.

Fierce fighting erupted around Moedrath, bridgehead town on the Cologne-Dueren highway, where the Germans counterattacked.

Striking out southeastward, the First army registered overnight gains of three and a half miles, capturing Erp, 15 miles from Bonn on the Rhine.

Sgt. Ed Gleich Is Glad To See U. P. Snow Again

Northern Michigan snow is a welcome change from 29 months of hot, steaming South Pacific islinds, including the invasions of Engebi, Eniwetok, the Marshall Islands and Guam. He was wounded on Guam, evacuated to a hospital on Guadalcanal, where he spent two months, and then was transferred to a hospital in San Diego, Calif.

Gleich has seen lots of action. As a member of the Marine Corps infantry, he went in several times with the first waves of troops to establish beachheads under heavy Jap fire. Casualties were high, and Gleich speaks emphatically about the importance of blood plasma. "Anyone who has donated blood," he said, "can feel that they have made a very worthwhile contribution. The use of plasma has saved many lives."

Sgt. Gleich

News From Home Important

Sgt. Gleich met six Escanaba boys while he was gone, including Herb Lewis, Russ Owen, and his cousin, Danny Hirn. He spent 17 months in Samoa, when he first arrived in the Pacific. Natives in the populated areas of the island were well-educated, many of them holding positions as teachers, clerks and bookkeepers. Others were skilled artists and craftsmen, and there was some brisk trading of native jewelry for G. I. corned beef, for which the Samoans developed a taste in spite of being a race of sea-food eaters. The soldiers, in turn, acquired a taste for papaya, breadfruit and baked green bananas, though they struck to their baseball games in spite of the natives' attempts to teach them to play cricket. News from home was most important to the boys, for when they first landed, they rarely heard a radio program. Newspapers were two months late. "New soldiers would arrive, singing hit tunes we had never heard, talking of things in the States which we knew nothing about. Soldiers want to know what is going on at home, and letters are extremely important," Gleich said.

Gleich speaks highly of the work done by the chaplains. "They were an inspiring example to the men," he said. "They stuck with us through thick and thin, taking the same risks. Many of them were killed. Religion means a lot to men on the battlefield; I never saw any atheists there."

Gleich feels that the war has not created in most soldiers a hatred of individual nations or races, but a hatred for the things that cause war . . . for the ignorance and stupidity and greed that causes lack of understanding among nations. "Young men thrown into battle mature quickly," he said. "They will return as full-grown adults, with definite convictions and ideas about the kind of world they are going to live in. They have learned to cooperate, to grasp opportunities and make decisions. Failure to do so has often meant death." Gleich feels that many soldiers are realizing the importance of special training and education, and will take advantage of the G. I. Bill of Rights, which provides educational opportunities for returning veterans.

Sgt. Gleich, who has received a medical discharge, hopes to attend school after a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gleich, 426 South Ninth street.

erased that sector it can turn its powerful units against Danzig.

The right wing of Rokossovsky's army last was reported within 33 miles of Danzig on the south, pushing up through the Polish "corridor" along the west bank of the Vistula River.

At the western end of Pomerania the right wing of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's Berlin-pointed First White Russian army had crossed the Ihna River six miles north of fallen Arnswalde, and was attacking on the immediate approaches to Stargard, outer defense bastion of Stettin, the Nazi high command said.

The German transocean news agency called this "a new center of gravity in which the Russians are exerting violent pressure."

Gas Station Proves Ambush For Japs In Town Near Manila

BY RICHARD BERGHOLZ

With U. S. First Cavalry Division, Saturday, Mar. 3 (AP)—There were two gasoline filling stations on opposite corners in a small town near Manila; so D Troop of the Fifth Cavalry Regiment decided to bivouac there for the night.

About 9 p. m. two trucks pulled into one of the stations. The cavalrymen figured they were Americans—until a crowd of little men jabbering an un-American language piled out.

The Yanks opened fire and killed about 20 Japanese. The rest scattered.

About 3 a. m., two more trucks arrived. Gun fire of the cavalrymen caught the first one, apparently loaded with explosives, and it blew up. The driver of the second truck jumped out and tossed a match into the vehicle, which also blew up.

Those who participated in the filling station incident included Pvt. Martin Bazzett of (Route 2) Cedar Springs, Mich.

Singapore Bombed With Good Results To Cut Japs In Two

Washington, Mar. 2 (AP)—India-based Superfortresses pounded Singapore again today in an action obviously integrated with plans to cut Japan's stolen empire in two.

Twentieth Air Force headquarters here said results of the daylight operation against the great naval base and supply bottleneck were "good." About 40 of the giant B-29s took part, bombing visually.

It was the fifth daylight strike by Brig Gen. Roger M. Ramey's 20th Bomber Command, and the third since Feb. 1 against the stolen British base through which the enemy must funnel materials to and from his most valuable conquered areas.

The only identification of specific targets for the B-29s today came in the first bare announcement of the operation, which named them as major industrial installations and the naval base.

One of the sky giants was lost to enemy action today, and anti-aircraft opposition was reported "moderate to intense." One Japanese interceptor was downed and another damaged.

LUBANG FALLS TO AMERICANS IN PHILIPPINES

China Sea.

Flag Over Corregidor

Northern Borneo airdromes were hit with 95 tons of bombs.

The Stars and Stripes flew from northern Luzon to Palawan along the entire South China Sea length of the Philippines today with Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in a symbolic return to Corregidor, declaring: "Let no enemy ever pull them down."

The flag was placed on Palawan, most westerly of the Philippines, by veterans of the U. S. 41st Infantry Division Wednesday in the latest island invasion in the archipelago.

On Corregidor, MacArthur gave the flag raising order at the dramatic ceremony yesterday to Col. George Jones of Memphis, Tenn., whose American paratroopers helped recover the fortress.

American control of the South China Sea flank of the islands now extends more than 600 miles, from Lingayen Gulf on Luzon to the southern tip of Palawan.

MacArthur returned to Corregidor, as he had left, in a navy PT boat. His party included 11 staff officer who escaped with him in 1942 to Australia.

"Well, gentlemen," he said, "it has been a long way back."

Williams Warned He Can't Win Out As Chief Of REA

Washington, Mar. 2 (AP)—Senate leaders were reported tonight to have proposed to Aubrey Willians that he ask President Roosevelt to withdraw his nomination as rural electrification administrator.

They told him, the report went, that there appeared to be no chance for confirmation, but Williams replied that he would prefer to go down fighting.

The suggestion that Williams withdraw was made after canvasses showed a heavy Democratic defection from support of him.

Republicans and southern Democrats fighting the nomination won the first round today with a 12-8 senate agriculture committee vote against confirmation.

Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky) expressed confidence nevertheless that the senate eventually will approve the president's choice to head the $500,000,000 financing agency for rural electric lines.

A senate vote is improbable before the last of next week at the earliest. The disposition of the leadership is to dispose first of manpower legislation.

Seventh War Loan Goal Is 14 Billions, Morgenthau Reveals

Washington, March 2 (AP)—Secretary Morgenthau announced today a $14,000,000,000 goal for the seventh war loan, divided evenly between individuals and corporations.

The $7,000,000,000 quota for individuals is the highest ever assigned them. The series E quota is also more than Mr. and Mrs. America have been asked to dig up for that class of securities heretofore.

The total quota is the same as that of the sixth war loan.

In order to sell the unprecedented amounts of bonds to non-corporate investors the treasury set the longest sales period yet.

The formal drive with its customary great promotional campaign will extend from May 14 to June 30—seven weeks as compared with four weeks in the sixth war loan from November 20 to December 16.

In addition to this seven week drive, an "intensification of activities" in the sale of series E bonds will begin April 9, when millions of persons in payroll savings plans throughout the country will be asked to enlarge their participation as a part of the seventh war loan.

KOSHER MEATS SCARCE

Washington, March 2 (AP)—The OPA today increased point values of a number of kosher meats, including beef short ribs, chuck, brisket, plate, shank, hamburger, sausage, ready-to-eat and variety meats.

KING NAMES REGENCY

London, March 2 (AP)—King Peter of Yugoslavia named a regency council today to represent him in his homeland, choosing three names from six submitted by Premier Ivan Subasic under an agreement with Marshal Tito.

Posse Of 500 To Hunt Wolves Near Ironwood

Ironwood, Mich., March 2 (AP)—An air-supported posse of 500 hunters will take to the Lake Gogebic woods near here Sunday in one of the biggest midwestern drives in years aimed at eliminating wolves—the four-legged kind.

The wolf situation, expert observers agree, has been getting out of hand lately. There was a time, they say, when the wolves— coyotes to veteran woodsmen and line runners—skulked through the brush singly or at the most in pairs. However, now they're ganging up and hunting in packs and it's getting so deer are scarcely safe any more.

Since preservation of the deer herd is of prime importance both to conservation officials and the boys who will want to do a little scouting after the war, the Ironwod Conservation club, together with the state commission and Michigan state police, organized Sunday's offensive.

With licensing regulations suspended to allow out-of-state hunters to take part, officials will send a three-mile long skirmish line into the cutover east of frozen Lake Gogebic. Directed by aircraft equipped with public address systems, the drivers expect to clear the denizens of the darker paths out onto the ice, where posted gunmen will pick them off.

The wolves are the primary object, but any bobcats or foxes which have gotten into bad company can expect the same small-calibre treatment from the executioners.

In the interest of safety, high-power rifles will be barred and hunters will use only shotguns or .22 rifles or pistols. Every fourth or fifth man in line will carry a compass and every precaution will be taken to prevent anyone being lost.

The sponsoring club will collect the bounty on all animals killed.
